Nixon Betrayed Trust, Stevenson Charges

"Whom can we trust -- which man, which party, which candidate? Nixon has been fast and loose with the trust of the American People," Illinois Sen. Adlai Stevenson told an overflow crowd at the Bootheel Democratic Rally at the Ramada Inn in Miner last night.

Stevenson was speaker for the biennial rally which drew over 600 persons from throughout the Bootheel area. He was introduced by Sen. Stuart Symington of St. Louis, who called for support of the entire Democratic ticket in next Tuesday's general election.

The Illinois senator charged that President Richard Nixon has sought to starve all democratic programs of the 1960s and has created the most severe economic failure since the 1950s.

He accused the Nixon administration's agriculture department of selling out the farmers and taxpayers, noting that in the recent grain deal with the Soviet Union there was evidence that advance notice was given to grain dealers and not to farmers. Grain dealers profited $150 million of the taxpayers money, he charged.

Stevenson said peace could have come to South Vietnam long ago if decisions were made "by Americans in Washington and not an autocratic regime in Saigon."

All the state candidates' wives were guests at the rally along with gubernatorial candidate Edward Dowd of St. Louis and Jim Spain, of Bloomfield, candidate for attorney general.

Sen. J. F. Pat Patterson of Caruthersville was presented a plaque for outstanding service in the Missouri State Senate. Patterson is president pro tem of the Senate and for 10 years served as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee. He is retiring from the Senate this year.

In a brief news conference prior to the rally, Dowd spoke on issues of the campaign. He said capital punishment should be retained and when questioned on narcotics laws, said the penalty for narcotics users should not be reduced.

Dowd was confident of his win next Tuesday, stating that he doesn't abide by the polls which show the race to be close. He believes he'll win with a 250,000 plurality.

At the close of the evening Senator Stevenson again stated the Republican party cannot be trusted and endorsed George McGovern, stating that he is "good and honest" and that he will work for a new beginning for America.

Patrol Site Up To Chief, Say Dowd & Bond

Both candidates for governor, Republican Christopher (Kit) Bond and Democrat Ed Dowd have announced they will let the highway patrol decide whether or not the Troop E Headquarters should move to Sikeston if they are elected.

The only difference between their positions is that Bond hopes to appoint a new superintendent of the patrol.

The decision to move the patrol headquarters from Poplar Bluff to Sikeston was announced Oct. 27, by Col. E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, superintendant of the highway patrol.

Bond issued a statement Tuesday afternoon through an aide, Charlie Valiere, and Dowd spoke to reporters last night prior to the Democratic Rally at the Ramada Inn.

Valiere said Bond's concern is that the decision to move the headquarters should not become a political issue and that it should be on its own merits.

Valiere said if Bond is elected there will probably be a new superintendent of the patrol. The decision on where to locate the troop headquarters will rest with the new man.

"I don't understand the thinking behind moving the headquarters and would be inclined to leave it in Poplar Bluff if it is operating effectively," Dowd said.

He added he would be agreeable to the move to Sikeston if studies show the Sikeston site is the best location.

The decision is not up to him, Dowd said, it should be up to the patrol.

The decision to move the headquarters from Poplar Bluff to Sikeston was made after Gov. Warren Hearnes vetoed a section of an appropriation bill that would have required the headquarters to be located in Poplar Bluff.

A tug of war, primarily between Sikeston and Poplar Bluff, quickly got underway. Other cities, including, Bloomfield, Dexter, and Cape Girardeau, dropped out of the bidding when the patrol discarded them as suitable locations.

David Pence, city manager of Poplar Bluff, is still threatening legal action over the move. He refuses to discuss exactly what the city plans, but promised "we will take action."

Pence said city officials have not decided what course of action to be taken, but promised they would decide soon.

Poison Victims Are Okay

MEMPHIS — Two Caruthersville, Mo., youths who drank poison from a bottle they took from a grocery store were reported in "excellent" condition and may be released today from Le Bonheur Children's Hospital here, a hospital physician said.

The Pemiscot County sheriff's office said four youths stole a whisky bottle they thought contained liquor but was actually filled with Diazinon 4 E, a powerful pest control poision, from a combination grocery store-pest control firm Wednesday in Caruthersville.

Police said two of the youths sampled the posion and did not like its taste. The other two drank more of the contents, became ill and were rushed to a doctor's clinic in Caruthersville, then transferred to Le Bonheur. Original reports said all four youths had been hospitalized, but police say only two were taken to Memphis.

The youths, all juveniles, were on their lunch break from George Washington Junior High School when they stole and drank the poison.

Sikeston Man Shot To Death

One man is dead and another man is in Missouri Delta Community Hospital after a shootout Thursday night at the home of Ed Guyton, three miles west of Bertrand at the intersection of Route O and Highway 62.

Dead is Grover C. Dorrough, 64, of 110 Petty St. Guyton, 66, was taken to the hospital with a bullet wound in the cheek. Scott county Deputy Sheriff Tom Dover said doctors plan to remove the bullet from Guyton's cheek today.

Dover, who investigated the shooting, said the men were arguing over $7 Guyton was said to have owed Alice Shaw, Dorrough's common-law wife. During the argument, Guyton allegedly pulled a .22-caliber pistol and shot Dorrough in the right arm and in the stomach.

Dorrough then pulled his .22-caliber pistol and shot Guyton in the left cheek. Dorrough was dead when Dover arrived on the scene.

Dover said Guyton would not be charged until after an autopsy is held to determine the cause of death. The autopsy will be performed today.

Coroner Gene Nunnelee said an autopsy was being performed because the wounds did not seem to be sufficient to cause death unless the bullets hit vital organs. He said at this point he was not certain Dorrough died from the gunshot wounds.

The body is at Dotson Funeral Home where arrangements are pending.

The time is fast approaching when you can quit thinking about who you are going to vote for and make up your mind. We hope that all the people that think President Nixon is sent down from Heaven will think about it some more and think maybe that there might be somebody else that could do just as good, if not better than he does. Of course, at the coffee table, they overwhelm me with my contention that the Senator McGovern is going to win, but they haven't made me change my mind and they are not going to. I believe that there is enough of us screwballs that are going to vote for McGovern that he will beat the rich playboys kingpin.

PARTY PLATFORM WE CAN UNDERSTAND

While we have struggled through the various party platforms, we must admit that many of those thousands of words say practically nothing unless you have an axe to grind on a specific plank.

So our attention was called to the "Tiger Party" platform which the author of same says, "... It is short. It is simple. It is understandable. It is a platform to stand on as well as run on. There are only ten planks."

Here they are:

Individual Dignity -- We pledge to restore and to protect the dignity and the freedom of the individual. We will foster those things which will make Americans proud, innovative, and self-reliant.

Government -- We promise less of it.

Taxes -- We will treat public monies as carefully as though they were our own.

Domestic Economy -- We recognize that wealth is created only through the production of useful goods and services. We will promote productivity, and those who produce will receive greater rewards than those who do not.

Crime and Violence -- Our remedy is simple -- punishment that is swift, sure, and adequate.

Minorities -- We appeal to all minorities to join the majority. We pledge equal opportunity for all, but license for none.

Weifare -- We will help those who are handicapped and those who cannot work. For others, we will provide adequate job training and job opportunities. We will not tolerate the professional poor, or provide a dole for those who will not work.

Environment -- Aggressively, we will seek to improve our environment and the quality of life. We will set attainable goals which we will achieve at a price we can afford.

Foreign Relations -- We will share our know-how with all peoples. We will not try to impose our ideas on them.

Freedom -- We believe that all peoples have the right to freedom of thought and action, so long as such actions do not impinge on the rights of others. We will work to restore that concept of freedom.

Time To Go Upstairs And Do The President-Of-All-The People Bit

NEW YOR)ap) — Some men fear that if the women's liberation movement succeeds and every lady finally becomes the girl of her own dreams the world will be a more difficult one for men.

"No telling what they'll be like then," said one worried male. "It's hard enough to understand them now as slaves and mere sex objects. There's no telling how any man will be able to tell what they'll want when they get everything they think they want."

As a lifelong admirer of women myself, I think this attitude is merely another exhression of outdated masculine chauvinism. Such foreboding is utterly unjustified.

Why should women be any more difficult to get along with in the future than they were in the past or are now? Is the beauty of a rose changed by whether there are a few less or a few more thorns on its stem?

Some things are changeless, and one of them, probably, is the essential nature of women. Women are not as unpredictable as they are thought to be. When you come down to it, they are actually as predictable as a weathercock, except that they respond only to the winds of their own soul.

So, basically, no matter how much she may seem changed on the surface, the willful girl of the future shouldn't be any harder to figure out than the williful woman of today.

The average man can safely bet that a typical liberated woman of tomorrow will still —

Solve the problem of what to do with a leaky package by giving it to a man to carry.

Think she's missing something in life.

Is McGovern Picking Up?

Is Senator George McGovern picking up strength in his bid for the presidency of the Unites States on the Democratic ticket? Everything points to the fact that he is. But he still has a long, long way to go.

Not too many days ago, Lou Harris, a national polister with a good reputation, made a speech in which he pointed out that Senator McGovern had gained six points during the month of September in his race against President Nixon. Even with that gain, it did not bring the South Dakota Senator within striking distance of President Nixon.

But a statement Mr. Harris made was even more important than the 6-point edge gained by Senator McGovern in September. Mr. Harris told an audience, or at least he was quoted as having said, that if he were President Nixon he "would be running scared."

Just what was meant by those words was not explained. But one might infer that Senator McGovern was starting to move. Whether or not he can move fast enough in the few remaining weeks remains to be seen. Jimmy the Greek doesn't think too highly of Senator McGovern's chances. One day last week an article showed that Nixon was Jommy the Greek's favorite by 15 to 1 odds. Those are long odds.

President Nixon has declared that he believes it is necessary for him to stay in the White House and run the country rather than getting out on the campaign trail. That sounds well to the American public.

But the President has managed to get out of Washington, D. C., a few times. In recent days he made three campaign trips to large cities. He did very well for himself. He was reported as picking up $1,000,000 in each of the treee cities. That should warm the cockles of his heart.

One wonders just what the President is going to do with all of the campaign money he will have. It has been said—and maybe it is said by envious Democrats—that President Nixon will have a campaign fund of $40,000,000. And that's a lot of money.

Possibly Mr. Nixon believes that with a fund as large as he has and with all of the polls showing him with a substantial lead he doesn't need to get around the country. This newspaper has no way of knowing but we would venture to guess that before the campaign draws to a close Mr. Nixon will be getting out and will find that maybe there isn't as much "homework" in Washington as he thought and he will go a-visiting in the hustings.

INAPPROPRIATE AND UNSOUND

While economists and a number of public officials urge an "incomes policy" or in plain words, price and wage controls, organized labor is reportedly getting set to demand a boost in the minimum wage to at least $2 an hour. Every boost in the minimum wage has meant lessened opportunity and unemployment for beginners, part-time workers and young people, and it has had an escalating effect on wages and salaries all along the line.

This year, with unemployment up and inflation rampant along with talk of tighter controls, it is hard to see how any sort of a case can be made for another step-up in the minimum wage. Perhaps it is time some thought was given to the idea of a minimum profit. According to late reports, corporate profits in 1970 were the lowest since 1945 in relation to gross national production. Unless profit margins remain healthy, it is idle to talk of sustained prosperity. Altogether, this seems like an inappropriate time to indulge in the old political debate over another increase in the minimum wage.

INTO THE VALLEY RODE THE 400

Mort Medway runs an unpretentious delicatessen in Tarzana in the San Fernando Valley. One day a space salesman for the Sunday Los Angeles Times persauded Mort to try a 1 column x 3 inch ad.

The next day a chauffeur drove up in a Rolls Royce and bought 30 pounds of Nathan-style hot dogs with New York mustard which were featured in the ad. Seems his boss in Beverly Hills had a touch of nostalgia.

Flushed with success, Mort repeated the ad the following Sunday, then sat down and wrote the Times a thank-you letter. In it he said, "We have customers coming into our store all the way from Long Beach and Pomona ... In the 2-week period our sales have risen 25%!"

Funny what 6 inches of advertising can do, isn't it?"

TIME TO CUT BAIT

Listening to some superannuated labor leaders talk about going fishing on election day, we were reminded of the young zealots who shouted "never" to Hubert Humphrey's nomination four years ago. Quite a number of Senator Eugene McCarthy's dedicated followers did, in fact, exercise their right not to vote. And they got Richard Nixon and have denounced him since.

George Meany, I. W. Abel and their colleagues at the stagnant peak of the labor movement have limited affection for young radicals. But this hierarchy, whose progressive past is being spoiled by present aimlessness, seems inclined to follow the footsteps of those it resents most. Messrs. Meany and Abel do not like Richard Nixon because, they say, he has worked against the interests of the working man. They do not like George McGovern because, as one of them put it, he is "too soft on Communism," whatever that hackneyed phrase means.

Perhaps Messrs. Meany and Abel and their colleagues should cease trying to be experts on foreign policy and pay more attention to pocketbook issues. The great Plato, in one of his less quoted passages, pointed out that "The punishment suffered by the wise who refuse to take part in the government, is to live under the government of bad men."

A LESSON FOR PAUL BUNYAN

Paul Bunyan legends about heroic exploits in the land of the big trees and strong men are enthralling. They are also misleading, so far as the timber industry is concerned. Many people still think timber companies hurt rather than help the forest lands in which they operate. In an effort to help the public view timber harvesting and forest managements as they are contemporarily practiced, one of the largest timber companies* in the country conducted a Paul Bunyan sized "road show" of a typical logging operation and reforestation project.

The show ran for 23 days while to company removed trees from its land along a highway leading into a recreation area in the Cascade Mountains in Washington State. It drew thousands of people from 30 states and five foreign countries. Many of those attending had never seen the modern equipment used by loggers. One machine was operated by a team, a member of which used a two-way radio to direct the placing of grapples that pick up logs, thus doing away with the old-fashioned and dangerous business of fastening steel cables to logs by hand. The show drew interesting comment from spectators, such as, "I would like to see this made available during (the) school year to school groups," and "We are most impressed with the conservation procedures."

A part of the show was the reforestation that follows logging. As soon as the area was logged, fir seedlings grown in the company's high-yield forest nurseries were planted. In connection with this, spectators had an opportunity to view the reforestation part of the company's tree farming, as well as the company's High Yield Forestry program. It opened up 14 miles of logging roads for self- guided tours which let visitors see young trees invarious age groups and get an idea of what logging land looks like in coming years as new trees grow.

Paul Bunyan was a great fellow in his day; but, in our era of sustained-yield logging, multiple land use, conservation and recreation, he would have a lot to learn.

THE BIBLE AND THE CONSTITUTION

There are many people in this country who are struggling to be men of God. There are more who are aware of God, but don't really relate to Him. Many more don't know how to relate to Him.

So are there many people in this country who are fighting to save the U. S. Constitution. More pay lip service to the Constitution, but don't really respond to it. And still more don't know what it's all about.

Struggling believers know of the love and sacrifice of God and they've dedicated their lives to Him. People aware of God, but with no relationship to Him, are often those who gather for teas and socials, but who never scratch the surface. The largest group are those who have heard the scriptures and read of the love of God, but who have known only social believers.

The one and only hope for all these people is God's book, the Bible. In the Bible are found the love, joy, greatness and forgineness of God. The plan of salvation is crystallized for everyone.

Constitution-supporting people know that the outline contained there is our only hope for continued freedom. Many say thay support the Consitution, but if they can get something for themselves, they don't care what the Constitution says. More people see that the Constitution has been turned every way but loose and so the Constitution means nothing to them.

The only answer is to search the Bible for salvation and to study the Constitution to remain free. The Bible and the Constitution: an unbeatable combination. HLH.

Kissinger's Papers:
How Meany Tackled
The Left For Nixon
By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON-- Had anyone snatched Henry Kissinger's attache case as he was heading for Paris Oct. 6, the thief would have found among the secret doucments one sheaf of papers soon to be declassified. This was an advance copy of a Lou Harris political poll.

It was to be released in a few days, but Dr. Kissinger showed it to the powerful North Vietnamese lady and others including Le Duc Tho--the Hanoi hegotiating team. It revealed Richard Nixon was some 27 points nationally ahead of George McGovern.

No one can properly state what impact this survey by the organization of Lou Harris, an intimate friend of the Kennedy family and this in Hanoi's eyes above suspicion, had on its powerful Communist party people.

But on Oct. 8, the Hanoi hands made their first real move towards a cease- fire. Henry Kissinger, leaving his image of diplomatic playboy of the Western World, had played it out of strength.

Much of that strength and much of the President's poll power sprang from what at the beginning of this Administration would have appeared to be the least likely of Presidential allies-- strong blocs of labor led by the most uncompromising anti-Communist of all free world leaders, George Meany.

Whenerver the President has needed mass support for some dramatic move he has turned to Meany who, regardless of what the world thinks of the curmudgeon of his 78 years, still is the symbol, virtually the only global symbol, of actual proletarian power anywhere in the non- Communist world. Mocked by the liberal- labor faction, disdained by Sen. McGovern's forces and the candidate himself, the very image of hardheadedness and hard- hatism in which they have painted him has been his strength-- and the President's.

It is this effigy, cigar butt and all, which irks the Peking and Moscow politburos so much. They are "people's" and "Socialist" democracies. They have found it difficult to explain how one bulky whilom plumber has been able to block their sweep of world labor.

Thus when Mr. Nixon needed support of the American military move into Cambodia, Meany signaled the New York building trades in May 1970, his very own base of power on the streets from which he sprang. And they put well over 125,000 hard hats onto those sidewalks of New York. And the demonstrations rolled across the land. They neutralized the splinterlike demonstrations on the campuses in that ancient era.

It was thus when Mr. Nixon mined Hanoi's supply harbors. As he put it at the Oct. 8 Amerito (American— Italian societies) banquet to honor the Laborers' International president Peter Fosco:

"Also I recall in May . . . when I had to make a very hard decision . . . one that I felt was essentail to protect American fighting men . . . when I had to order the mining of the harbors of Haiphong and order the bombings of military installations in North Vietnam. When I did that . . . in attempting to enlist support for that very hard decision it was not necessary for me to call these men. They called and offered their support. For this I am most grateful."

The President looked at Fosco and down along the dais at Meany shrouded in cigar smoke-- and at Mrs. Meany too, now his ardent supporter.

President Nixon has nursed that relationship. He has never failed to thank each of the alleged "hard hats." On Oct. 17, he spoke glowingly of the American labor movement, meaning Meany and colleagues, while entertaining some 30 foreign labor leaders at a White House dining room reception.

The President has not received such a band of visitors before-- union chiefs from 24 nations. But Meany had virtually arranged their trip from Asia, Africa and Latin America.

And Meany has asked Mr. Nixon to sit and rap with them. Meany knows the Left has portrayed both of them as Neanderthals. So Meany wanted the foreign unionists to come and observe our election and the see the President and so tell the Third World that ''hard- hatism'' was no proletarian betrayal.

On the same day the President wrote a "Dear Teddy'' letter to Longshoremen's Thomas Gleason, thanking them and him for support of the White House foreign policy. The note was signed with the personal "RN."

About that time the AFL—CIO "American Federationist," edited by Meany, was on the desks of 150,000 labor leaders, editors, policy makers, et al. In it was a searing attack by Meany on McGovern, who, though never mentioned by name, is accused of "neoisolationism . . . based on a misjudgment of the basic aims of the totalitarian forces.

"The latter continue to seek world conquest and domination through political blackmail, subversion, military threats and aggression," wrote Meany. "(McGovern's proposals) only play into the hands of the Communists."

Then comes: "Even the most fervent pledge to help assure Israel's security and survival is worthless if the defense cuts proposed by the advocates of a neo- isolationist foreign policy were made . . . Such measures would adversely affect the situation in the Middle East . . . Israel continues to be endangered, to need strong American protection . . Moreover, the protection of Israel cannot be isolated from America's overall military power . . . Neoisolationism and effective aid to Israel are incompatible."

These are Meany's words to his political legionnaires in the campaign's final days. It's been a long road, but the odd couple, Mr. Labor and Mr. Nixon, marched it shoulder to shoulder. The road will fork soon enough but not until it has rolled past Paris, Hanoi and Election Day.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON— In a move that could upset the delicate diplomacy between Washington and Peking, the United States is delivering two submarines to Communist China's arch enemy, Chiang Kai- shek.

The transfer was approved by the President's national security adviser, Henry Kissinger, in a secret order dated October 16.

White House sources stress that the subs had been promised to Chiang several months ago and that the delivery violates no agreement with Peking. "We have been meticulous about keeping our agreements with the People's Republic of China," a top policymaker told us.

Kissinger also placed strict conditions on Chiang's use of the subs. The order to Defense Secretary Mel Laird emphasized:

"With reference to your memorandum of September 13, 1972, regarding provision of two diesel- powered submarines to the Republic of China (Taiwan), the transfer is approved subject to the following conditions:

"-- That the first ROC submarine crew's underway training not begin until late November.

"-- That we obtain from the ROC, as a condition of the transfer of the two submarines, a formal written understanding that the submarines are to be used exclusively for anti-submarine warfare training.

"-- That whatever press guidance covering both the beginning of underway training and the formal transfers of the two submarines be cleared with the White House."

--Junketing Jesuit--

A junketing Jesuit, who was sent to Vietnam by the White House at the taxpayers' expense, came back loaded with political ammunition.

The outspoken priest, Dr. John McLaughlin, is now making campaign speeches for President Nixon on the Vietnam issue. As evidence that the good father's Vietnam lectures are strictly political, all his travel expenses are picked up by the Committee to Re-elect the President.

Father McLaughlin's speeches are so militant that he sometimes seems to contradict the official White House line. He appears to disagree with White House negotiator Henry Kissinger on the prospects for a Communist takeover, which McLaughlin warns will mean a "bloodbath" with up to one million victims in South Vietnam.

In contrast with Kissinger's moderate tone toward North Vietnam, the bluff, bearish priest cries out that North Vietnam is "the most aggressive, brutalizing and austere government on earth." He also extols the bombing of the North.

His views on Vietnam have changed radically in the last two years. Father McLaughlin came to President Nixon's attention in 1970 when the goodly friar ran a spirited, pro-peace campaign against Sen. John Pastore, D— R.I. The President was so impressed with McLaughlin's slam- bang style that he recruited the priest as an adviser.

Father McLaughlin became close to the inner circle of the National Security Council, the White House policymaking arm whose works and finances are hush- hush. The council sent the friar to Vietnam last spring ostensibly to study refugees, war casualties, ecology damage and the like.

But on his return, the White House dispatched him at least seven times to make sabre-rattling political speeches based on his Vietnam trip.

Senator Lee Metcalf, D— Mont., learned of the clerical campaigner and fired off an inquiry to Defense Secretary Mel Laird. The letter was referred to the Pentagon Chaplains Board whose executive secretary, Col. Duncan Stewart, wrote back to Metcalf disclaiming any responsibility for Father McLaughlin's junket.

"The command chaplain (in Vietnam) had no knowledge of his visit until he met him at a luncheon in Saigon," wrote Colonel Stewart. "Father McLaughlin is an adviser and writer for President Nixon."

We reached Father McLaughlin at the White House. He explained that the National Security Council had wanted him to look at the war "from a humanitarian perspective." He saw nothing wrong with using the information he gathered on his trip for political purposes.

Secret White House polls show an alarming number of voters are drifting away from President Nixon into the doubtful column. This is the reason the Republicans are putting on the steam during the final week of the campaign... When Mike Mansfield gives up the Senate Democratic leadership, two powerful senators will jostle for the right to step into his shoes. Already squaring off for the showdown are Minnesota's Hubert Humphrey and West Virginia's Bob Byrd. Senator Ted Kennedy doesn't want the leadership and has promised his support to Humphrey.

List Shows Thirteen Donors Give Nixon $3.5 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirteen wealthy donors headed by million-dollar contributor W. Clement Stone gave President Nixon's re-election campaign $3.5 million in hitherto secret contributions.

Their names were on a list of 283 donors who poured a total of $5 million into the Nixon campaign between Jan. 1, 1971, and March 9, 1972- before a new federal law required the naming of campaign contributors.

The list of persons who gave $1,000 or more during the period was made public Thursday night by the Committee for the Re-Election of the President as the result of an agreement between the committee and Common Cause.

The self-styled citizens' lobby had filed suit to force disclosure of the donors' names.

Another list of donors who gave from $100 to $999 during the period is to be disclosed Sunday.

Still secret are the names of contributors between March 10 and April 7, the day the new law went into effect. The March 10 cutoff marked the final reporting date under the old Corrupt Practices Act.

Republican fund-raisers pulled in millions of dollars just before the April 7 deadline so the contributors could avoid public identification.

Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential candidate, began disclosing contributions during the primary elections and made a major issue of Nixon's refusal to do the same.

Stone, chairman of Combined Insurance Co. of America, had said publicly he gave more than $500,000 to the Nixon campaign. In 1968, he was the largest known Nixon donor, giving $500,000, and apparently will hold that rank this year. He has given another $27,500 in recorded contributions since April 7.

After the report was released, Stone told newsmen in Chicago that the correct figure actually was more than $1 million. But he declined to say how much more. He said he objects to having the contributions described as secret.

"There is no reason for me to openly publicize what we do," he said. "It seems to me a private matter."

Richard M. Scaife of Pittsburgh, heir to the Mellon banking fortune, was listed for $800,000 in the report. He has said publicly he gave $990,000.

Four dairy-industy committees were listed for $232,500 which they gave several months after receiving a favorable government ruling on milk prices.

Ann Landers

Wife Loses Husband To Bachelor Brother

Dear Ann Landers: I lost my husband to another man. Before you jump to conclusions, let me explain. We are both 52. Arthur and I had a good marriage until a few years ago. Our children are grown and on their own. Arthur is what you might call peculiar, but he is not queer. The "other man" is his bachelor brother.

The minute Arthur gets up in the morning he telephones Brother to ask if he had a good night's sleep. Then they plan what they're going to do that evening.

The two of them act like teen- agers. I am not included in any of their activities. Brother has dinner with us every night, unless he and Arthur decide to eat out. Brother rarely speaks to me and I have given up trying to be friendly. I consider him an arch rival who has taken my husband away.

Please give me some advice before I crack up. Or have I cracked up already? Impossible Situation

Dear I.P.: Your signature describes your dilemma. What you fail to understand is that no one can be taken over unless he wants to be. Your husband is a willing partner in this grossly immature involvement.

Would your life be better or worse without him? This is the question you must ask yourself. A woman of 52 is too young to dry up and blow away. Base your decision on what is best for YOU. Arthur has already decided what is best for him.

Dear Ann Landers: Here's a word of encouragement for "Hooked in Lansing" who will soon be a teen- ager and is still sucking her thumb.

When I was six years old my folks tried everything to get me to stop. Nothing worked. The doctor told Mom to leave me alone.

I am 18 now and will be married in October. I quit sucking my thumb three months ago when I announced my engagement. It happened almost overnight. I don't know if it was my pride, love, being loved, or a combination of all three. If I could kick the habit anyone can. Please tell "Lansing" I'm rooting for her, Ann.-- Unhooked in Oakland.

Dear Oak: Nothing helps like having someone say, "I did it, you can, too." This is the concept of Alcoholics Anonymous, Weight Watchers and Recovery, Inc. Thanks for the encouragement.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for that broad who thinks people are stingy if they don't take passengers along "as a favor" since they were "going anyway.." Listen, Lady, the average automobile depreciates at the rate of 7c a mile. You didn't say how far it was to Florida, and I can imagine what you meant by " a few personal belongings." Maybe a small sewing machine, a hair dryer, a couple of wig boxes, and a bird cage.

When I was in high school my dad gave me orders. If I carried passengers to football games or barn dances, they had to chip in for the gas and oil. If a tire blew, they had to kick in for that, too. In other words, no freeloading. These are darned good rules to live by.--Fair in San Antonio

Dear Fair: I suspect you're about my vintage. In those days (antedeluvian, of course) a buck was a lot harder to come by and a car was a big deal. I agree that a person who travels several hundred miles as a passenger should offer to share the cost of the gas and oil but short trips should be favors.

Talent Show Winners Named

RISCO-- First prize of $10 in the annual high school talent show last week was won by the junior class with the skit, "Reminiscing." The elementary talent division was won by the fourth grade class for their "Young Folk Dancers". Second place winner was the kindergarten class which presented, "Halloween Masquerade"; and third place went to the third grade class which pantomined, "Third Grade Chorus".

Two Season Firsts Predicted

Sports Corner By Ron Jaynes

Oh, no . . .

I've lost the predictions of our weekly panel of guessers and face the task of picking tonight's winners alone.

With the rush of the basketball season approaching and the end of the football campaign only two games away for teams that fail to make the playoffs, it generally causes some problems.

So, without any assistance, I take on the job of giving you my expert opinion on how the games will turn out.

Here goes ...

Poplar Bluff at Sikeston --- The Bulldogs' offensive line has given only a pair of respectable performances all season long ... and of late has been at a season low, being part of the current three-game SHS losing skid. The forward wall will have to rise to the occasion tonight and protect Bill Colwick, so he can pass and open holes for the running of Curtis Bean, Jesse Smith and Tom DeRoush. Many think the Bulldogs are quitters ... Are they? I think not ... SHS 21-13.

Cape Central at Charleston --- Paul Schermann will probably wrap up the district scoring title tonight with at least five TDs, while he paces his squad to a convincing victory over the one-win Bluejays. But maybe I shouldn't take the Jays too lighlty. They have shown signs of becoming a good team at times during the season ... How about a conservative score of ... CCHS 56, CHS 13.

Jackson at Perryville --- What a battle this shapes up to be ... Both are seeking second place in the Northern Division ... as most teams have conceded the title to Cape ... A playoff berth could be riding on the outcome .... The Indians have their work cut out for them ... especially since it's being played on the Pirates' home ground ... The best way to decide the winner is a flip of the coin ... and JHS is the winner ... 22-19.

Kennett at Dexter --- Those Bearcats are an unpredictable group ... especially when I'm trying to figure out the situation ... The Indians have a good team, but I think the Bearcats have the talent to topple the Tribe. It won't be an easy task, however. Comparative scores show that the Tribe should be at least a three-touchdown favorite ... matching the Sikeston scores with both games ... I'll take Dexter and a one-point margin, 21-20.

Chaffee at Caruthersville --- No doubt about it ... the Tigers are the favorites ...although the game should be a free scoring affair ... Caruthersville 35, Chaffee 27.

Gideon at East Prairie --- A celebration is certain to erupt when the final horn sounds ending tonight's battle ... Because it will mark the first win of the seson for the Eagles ... East Prairie 13, Gideon 6.

Malden at Union City, Tenn. --- Coach Jack Phillips' Green Wave have their hands full tonight when they take the long journey into neighboring Tennessee ... for a match with Union City, a team that has been among the top gridiron squads in that state in recent years ...

Injuries have taken their toll on the Wave and, for that reason, we must go with the host ... UCHS 28, Malden 15.

Portageville at Scott City --- This should be a dandy contest ... The Rams are riding an eight-game winning streak and the Bulldogs have been going great guns since early in the season ... A person might be wise to predict a tie ... But I'll have to go with the mild upset ... PHS 21-20.

Doniphan and South Pemiscot will be victims of their visitors tonight.

Because of a light schedule next week, I'll tackle the job alone and get warmed up for the fast - charging basketball season.

The winner of the top prognosticator award will be announced next week after tabulation of the first eight weeks of guessers.

I've enjoyed working with our fearless reader panel of guessers and hope they'll all return next season and join in on the fun ...

Warriors Top League

OAKLAND (AP) — With Cazzie Russell, Rick Barry and Nate Thurmond teaming for 63 points, the Golden State Warriors defeated the Portland Trailblazers 118-104 for their fourth straight victory.

The victory Thursday night kept the Warriors a half game ahead of the Los Angeles Lakers in the Pacific Division of the National Basketball Association. The game was the only one played in the NBA Thursday. There were no games in the American Basketball Association.

Russell paced a third-quarter rally which brought the Warriors from 10 points behind to the victory. He tallied 23 points, seven in the third quarter.

Barry and Thurmond each had 20 points, with Barry adding 10 assists.

Sidney Wicks paced the Trailblazers with 30 points, 16 in the first quarter. He was scoreless in the second period then began to hit again in the third stanza.

Woodeshick To Taxi Squad

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Veteran running Back Tom Woodeshick was signed to a taxi squad contract after clearing waivers that the St. Louis football Cardinals had asked on him, a team spokesman said Thursday night.

Guard Dave Bradley was placed on the injured reserve list to make room for Woodeshick, a team spokesman said.

BELL CITY — Basketball action resumed Thursday night with Kelly of Benton rolling up a smashing victory over Bell City 79-40 and Oran taking the second game from Puxico 65-46 in Bell City B-Team tournament games.

Kelly had two outstanding scorers to lead the team to a big victory. Mothershead hit for 31 points and Felton collected 20.

Bell City was slow in starting, having only two points in the first quarter and seven in the second. The second half was no better as the Bell City team was still cold and Kelly ran away with the game.

Rivers dropped in 18 and Shear 11 to lead Bell City scoring.

Hurst and Taylor led Oran's win over Puxico with 14 points each.

First quarter scoring was low and gave the impression it was going to be a disappointing game but action picked up in the second quarter, with Oran taking charge.

Bowl Scouts Visit Big 8

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It's put up or shut up Saturday for the Oklahoma Sooners and the Iowa State Cyclones in the Big Eight Conference football race.

The two clubs, each with one conference defeat, collide before a sellout crowd of more than 35,000 at Ames, Iowa.

Barring startling developments involving the third-ranked Nebraska Cornhuskers, who lead the league with a 3-0 record, the loser of the SoonerClyclone battle is almost certain to bow out of the running for the Big Eight crown.

The Cornhuskers' nationally televised game at 15th-ranked Colorado must share top billing with the shootout at Ames between the seventh-ranked Sooners and the 14th-rated Cyclones. Colorado is 3-2 in conference competition, Oklahoma 1-1 and Iowa State 2-1.

Missouri, 16th ranked and 1-2, infaces Kansas State, 1-3, and Kansas, 0-3, goes to Oklahoma State, 2-1, for games of lesser importance although Oklahoma State must win or forget its championship ambitions.

Scouts from the Sugar, Gator, Liberty and Sun Bowls will pour into Ames to watch the Sooners and the Cyclones.

Iowa State Coach Johnny Majors, whose team is badly battered after last week's 34-8 victory over Kansas State, has spent the week trying to find ways to slow down Oklahoma's crack wichbone offense "and how to move the ball against their great defense."

"It's always important to score first," Majors notes, "but I'd rather score first in this game than any other one on our schedule. It would be nice to make them play catch up, heck, yes."

"In past years," says Sooner Coach Chuck Fairbanks, "I've always felt that we had a physical advantage over them but that's not the case this season. Their team is strong physically and blessed with some of the most talented athletes in the Big Eight at skilled positions.

"It's a big, big game for us and them, too. We know what we're getting into up there. It won't be any picnic. I think they're the best team in Iowa State history."

The Sooners will play without Tim Welch, their No. 2 fullback who is out for the season with a shoulder injury that required surgery.

Nebraska's defense has held the opposition scoreless in four straight games but may have its hands full with Colorado's Charlie Davis, the league's No. 2 rusher who is healthy again after a shoulder injury.

"Colorado will be the first team that will run right at us," says Cornhusker Coach Bob Devaney. "With Charlie Davis and Bo Matthews, they've got two powerful backs who can hurt you by running at you."

If necessary, the Cornhuskers will fire a barrage of passes at the Buffaloes. Nebraska's Dave Humm tops the conference in passing and has tossed for 1,498 yards.

Missouri, despite consecutive victories over Notre Dame and Colorado, is eyeing oft-beaten Kansas State cautiously. Aware of the Wildcats' Dennis Morrison's ability to pass.

SPAINHOWER

DEMOCRAT FOR STATE TREASURER

Honestly, he's the best!

The ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH in endorsing James Spainhower on Oct. 8, 1972, declared:

"Jim Spainhower was a legislator of remarkable independence and his plan for using state deposits to induce banks to attend to community needs should make him most attractive to independent voters".

COLUMBIA (MO.) TRIBUNE

(George Parker's home town newspaper)

"For us the race for state treasurer has raised an interesting question about the philosophy which governs the handling of interest bearing state accounts. . .

"In this race we favor Jim Spainhower simply because he seems to have a more sophisticated grasp of the job he is seeking. On many questions Parker is prone to say he will study the matter and make a good decision after he is elected. Spainhower, on the other hand, seems to have done more of his thinking ahead of time. At the level of treasurer we do not think the party label issue is important enough to be overriding as Parker urges. . .

"We endorse Jim Spainhower, the Democrat, for state treasurer."

Jets Upset Choice

NEW YORK (AP) — "Seems kinda funny," said Weeb Ewbank, coach of the New York Jets, "that we're the ones with the healthy quarterback."

New York, a three-point "line" underdog, is a 27-24 upset choice against those high rollers from Washington now that Sonny Jurgensen is gone with a ruptured Achilles tendon.

Joe Namath, as healthy as he is wealthy these days, must have a careful Sunday against Washington's defensive elders or interceptions could ruin his afternoon at Shea Stadium.

Ewbank can sympathize with Redskin Coach George Allen in the loss of Jurgensen. Old Weeb can't recall how many times Namath has been carted lame from the field.

The Jet-Redskin matchup is vital to two National Football League divisions. Washington, 6-1, needs its to stay a jump ahead of Dallas, 5-2. The Jets, 5-2, can't afford to fall farther behind unbeaten Miami, 7-0.

Every NFL offering isn't so handsomely cast. Somewhat of a clunker between the Patriots, 2-5, and Baltimore, 1-6, will keep some of the nation semiawake Monday night.

Thus far, the Friday afternoon predictions have been 28of-38 for a 73.6 percentage. Here's a complete look at what might happen in the eighth week of the NFL season:

Jets 27, Redskins 24: Washington barely escaped in New York last week against the crosstown Giants. This time, Namath won't let them get away with the help of the productive legs of Emerson Boozer and John Riggins.

Raiders 30, Chiefs 24: An American Conference West dandy. Taking a chance that Kansas City's jinx at Arrowhead Stadium will continue as long as the Chiefs are playing inconsistent football.

Steelers 20, Bengals 14: Wide receiver Charley Joiner has pumped up Cincinnati passing game, but this will be a battle of fine defenses.

Falcons 17, Rams 10: Another upset shot. Los Angeles is a three-point choice with the oddsmakers. It's a toughie since these NFC West frontrunners were both bombed last week, the Rams getting it 45-17 from Oakland and the Falcons being smashed 49-14 by San Francisco. LA is cuddling a ½-game division lead with the 49ers now a game behind.

Lions 17, Bears 7: Detroit's defense was puny against Dallas, but should rebound to contain the Bears' good-run, poorpass attack. It's a "new era" matchup between the NFL's quarterback rushing kings, Bobby Douglass of the Bears and Greg Landry of Detroit.

49ers 14, Packers 13: Somehow, the Packers just don't seem to fit in a wild-scoring game. Steve Spurrier waited six years to have a threetouchdown day like the one last Sunday in Atlanta. He should win again as John Brodie's fillin, but not by so much this time.

Dolphins 24, Bills 17: Miami isn't unbeatable. At least that's what we keep telling ourselves. But, even with O.J. Simpson at his pro peak and Bob Griese grounded with an injury, it stacks up as a ride to 8-0 for Coach Don Shula.

Cowboys 21, Chargers 10: Cowboys seemed to put it together in Monday night's dandy. They're after Washington in the NFC East and San Diego— like most teams trying to get in the way—will be run over whether it's Craig Morton or Roger Staubach at the wheel.

Giants 28, Broncos 17: New York came within a couple of officials' whistles of beating Washington last week. An improving young defense and the continuing passing wizardry of Norm Snead should outdo Denver's Floyd Little-Charley Johnson offense.

Vikings 27, Saints 14: Alan Page and the Purple Gang are back and will chase New Orleans quarterback around Metropolitan Stadium. The guess is they'll catch him more than the Saints harness Fran Tarkenton.

Browns 17, Oilers 10: Mike Phipps showed the finest passing of his career in the victory over Denver and Cleveland— like most anybody—has too much for the struggling Houston bunch.

Cardinals 24, Eagles 20: This one's a real beauty. St. Louis has became one of the NFL's weak brothers during October and Philadephia couldn't stand prosperity, following its upset of Kansas City by losing to New Orleans.

Colts 28, Patriots 14: ABC Television was dealt its share of duds for the Monday nighters this season and this one, with the demise of the Colts, ranks in there with the worst. The Lucy Show should have a great Monday night ranking and few guys will be late for work Tuesday morning after such a good night for sleeping.

Sems In 'Must Win' Situation

CAPE GIRARDEAU-- For the second week in a row, Southeast Missouri State University is faced with a win or be eliminated situation as the Indians lay their MIAA hopes on the line at Maryville Saturday (Nov. 4) in a 2 p.m. game against Northwest Missouri State.

Last week the Tribe faced Lincoln University, which had gone through five games undefeated, and handed the Tigers a 38- 8 setback. This week the Indians, with one conference loss, must knock off the Bearcats if they are to keep their league hopes alive.

Northwest Missouri State has a conference record of 3-1 and stands 5- 3 overall. The Bearcats offer impressive credentials as they are leading the conference in scoring with 204 points and boast the league's leading passer, rusher, scorer,and punter.

Running back Jim Albin holds three of these individual distinctions, as he is leading in rushing with 937 yards on 163 carries, in punting with an average of 39.9, and scoring with 66 oints.

Curtis Priest is the MIAA's top passer, having completed 85 of 182 passes for 1,100 yards and six touchdowns.

Indian head coach Tom Thrower had plenty of kind words for Saturday's foe and said "Maryville has a real fine team. They have a good pressure defense with enthusiasm and talent. Offensively, they have a strong running attack which we will have to stop and an outstanding passer in Priest."

Thrower knows it is a must for Southeast Missouri to beat the Bearcats and said, "If we beat Maryville, I feel we will have momentum that will make it difficult to keep us out of the conference picture."

The Indians should be in good shape for Saturday's game offensively. They have the third leading rusher in the league in Rich Attig of Murphysboro, Ill., and the league's ninth leading rusher in John Gabrisch of Hazelwood.

Gabrisch, who has gained 326 yards, was selected as the MIAA's offensive player of the week for his efforts against Lincoln. Attig, who has gained 751 yards this season, also contributed to the Tribe's victory over Lincoln with a good rushing total and a 48- yard field goal.

Quarterback Lance Brune of Cape Girardeau has completed 63 of 179 passes for 178 yards and four touchdowns this season.

Southeast Missouri State's overall record is 3- 3- 1. The Indians are 2- 1 in conference action.

After Saturday, the Tribe will have only two games remaining. They go to the University of Missouri- Rolla on Nov. 11 and return home Nov. 18 for the season finale against Central Missouri State.

Red Cross Is For Service· Says Jones

The Red Cross is not a charitable or benevolent organization, but it is designed for service, the Rev. W. Pipes Jones, chairman of the Scott County chapter of the American Red Cross told the Rotary Club Monday night at Ramada Inn.

"This service comes at a price," he said.

"Red Cross gives aid to the sick and wounded of the armed forces and Veterans Administration, acts as a medium of communication between the people of the United States and their armed forces and carries out a system of immediate relief for those who suffer in national disaster areas," stated the Rev. Mr. Jones.

"It also promotes a nation wide blood program and gives instruction in first aid, water safety, nursing care and youth work," he continued.

Services to Scott County cost about $8,000 per year to offer a 24-hour per day service, he stated. "About 45 per cent of all money received from contributions in Scott County is given to the Red Cross to help carry out its annual budget, which exceeds $50 million per year," he said.

The Rev. Mr. Jones concluded his speech by saying that there are no paid workers in the Red Cross and gave his tribute to Charles Green, who has given his service for the past 20 years in casework. Jones also made an appeal for support of the work of Red Cross.

A guest of the club was Arnold Jones, a Morley Rotarian.

Bond Leads In St. Louis Co.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate Christopher "Kit" Bond holds a slight edge over his opponeent in St. Louis County, but the lead is overshadowed by a wide margin for Edward L. Dowd, the Democratic candidate, in the city of St. Louis, a poll conducted by the St. Louis GlobeDemocrat and Kansas City Star showed Thursday night.

Dowd should carry the St. louis metropolitan area by about 20,000 to 25,000 votes the poll said.

President Richard M. Nixon had a 74,000 vote lead over his opponent Sen. George S. McGovern in St. Louis County the poll said.

Seventy-five persons took a rapid reading course this past summer taught by counselor psychologists from University of Missouri - Columbia, and it is being repeated by request each Monday for two hours through Dec. 18.

Counselor psychologists Jane Dumke and Fred Preme from the UMC testing and counseling center will teach the course. The fee is $35 which includes the cost of a textbook, "How to Become a Better Reader."

The real estate appraisal short course offers 12 hours of basic instructions for only $10, including the appraisal process. Hearnes Cited By Teachers

KANSAS CITY— Gov. Warren E. Hearnes was honored by the Missouri State Teachers Assoication Thursday for "exemplary leadership and his signal contribution to education.

The special citation for "Distinquished Service To Education" was presented during the 110th annual Missouri State Teachers Association meeting in Kansas City Municipal auditorium.

The citation referred to him has having been "a lonely champion in the General Assembly" for increased school funds in 1951. His first year as a state representative, and noted that, during his legislative service, he "became the recognized leader for the cause of public education."

Further reference was made of his work for greatly increased funding of state schools during his administration as governor and for his efforts to create in Missouri one of the best teacher retirement plans in the nation.

Both Gov. and Mrs. Hearnes participated in ceremonies honoring Everett Keith, retiring executive secretary of the teachers association.

The governor proclaimed the period of Oct. 29 through Nov. 4 as Everett Keith week in Missouri. Keith has directed the work of the association since 1941, and Gov. Hearnes, a freshman that year at University of Missouri, was one of the first college students hired by Keith as a part- time employe of the organization.

During the governor's career in public office for the past 22 years, the two men have worked together frequently in securing new laws and increased funds for public schools.

To The Voters of New Madrid County

Last week, after publicly stating that I was 100% for Voter Registration in New Madrid County, I called upon all the Democratic candidates seeking an office in the county to honestly and publicly state their position on this issue.

As of this writing the response has been zero. One can only assume that they are insensitive to the need of honest elections or fail to act because of fear of reprisal.

Some facts about Voter Registration obtained from the office of Secretary of State, James C. Kirkpatrick are:

1. The average costs throughout the State of Missouri to install Voter Registration is about 1 dollar per voter and 40 cents per voter thereafter to maintain the Registration Books.

2. Seventy-five % of all Missouri voters live within the 33 counties that have Voter Registration. New Madrid County is among the 25% that does not have Voter Registration and the only county in the bootheel.

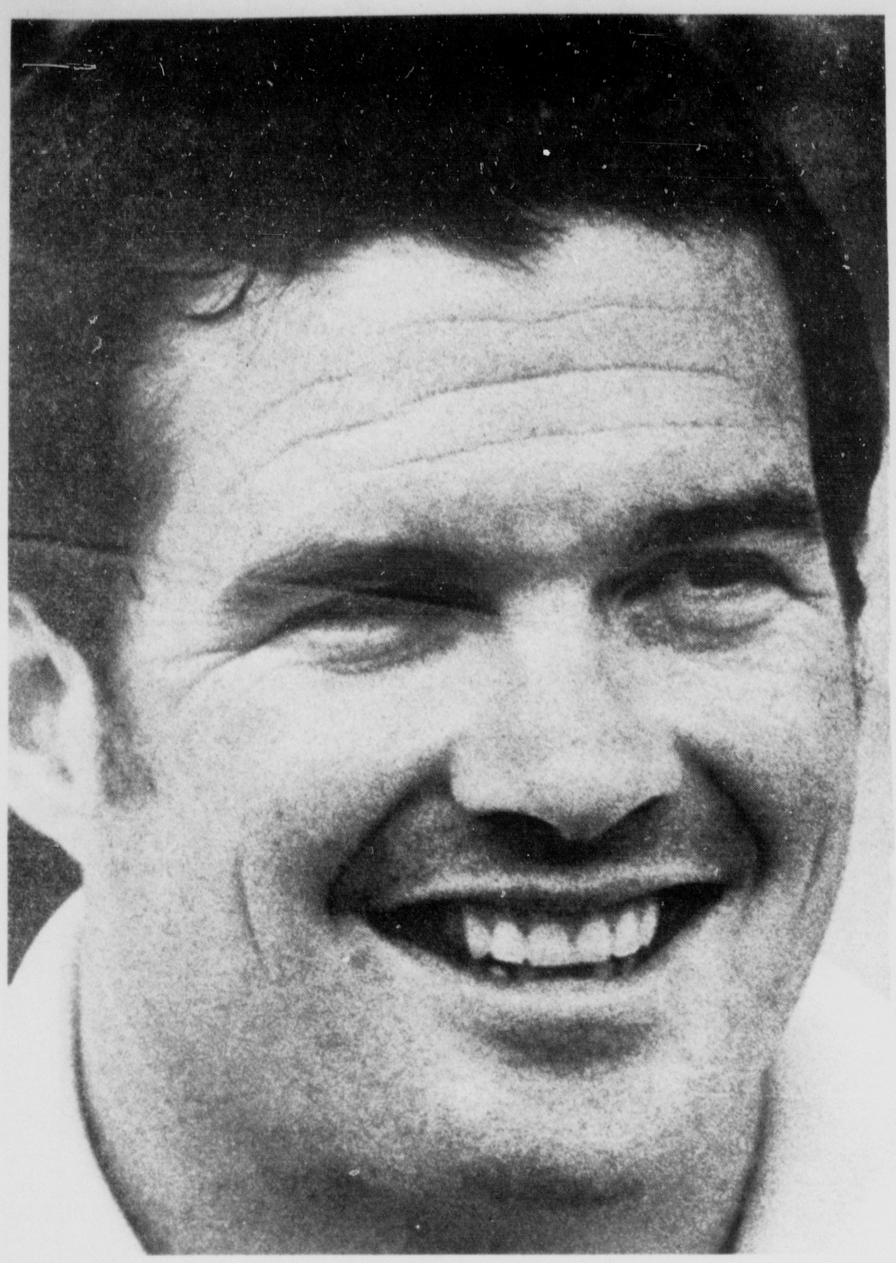

3. Missouri is one of 6 states in the United States without state-wide Voter Registration.

New Madrid County cast 8898 votes in the 1968 Governor's race. Any figure of more than $9,000.00 to install Voter Registration in New Madrid County would have to be looked upon with suspicion.

No one can force you to register or to vote. That is a freedom and privilege you must use personally, but if we fail to use them they could be taken away.

Missouri's leading newspapers endorse Kit Bond for Governor.

THE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH: ". . . the independent voter will favor the election of Mr. Bond. . . Over the years Democratic officials have become entrenched in a mire of patronage; a Republican would be far better qualified to reform the system. For this and other reasons noted we urge the election of Mr. Bond."

THE ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT: "Kit Bond is a man of action. He has the experience and knowledge of State Government. . . He has the integrity, character and mental toughness required for the challenging duties of Governor. . . He is his own man and a tremendously capable one at that. He will make an outstanding Governor."

THE JEFFERSON CITY NEWS-TRIBUNE: "The lack of people's trust in their public servants is the over-riding issue in the campaign. Only a sweeping transition of new faces, ideas, vitality and a totally fresh outlook can restore this confidence. Christopher (Kit) Bond, we think has the tools, the capacity and drive to accomplish this goal."

THE CAPE GIRARDEAU SOUTHEAST MISSOURIAN: "We believe . . . that too many have been in office too long in too many bureaus for there to be effective government under a continuation of the present establishment. . . If change is to come, it must be through a new party unhampered by old loyalties extending back more than three decades. . Consequently, we support Christopher S. Bond."

THE ROLLA DAILY NEWS: ". . . Missouri needs new progressive leadership to lift it out of its lethargy. That is why the Daily News urges the election of Bond as the next Governor of Missouri."

THE KANSAS CITY STAR: "A Bond victory in November would re-establish the 2-party system in the state's highest elective office. It would also provide the opportunity for a new direction for Missouri. If the people of Missouri want a fresh start next January, The Star believes that Christopher Bond is better qualified to follow through."

THE COLUMBIA TRIBUNE: "He has conducted the state auditor's office with honesty and intelligence. . . We think the voters should elect a bright, energetic Governor who will have the maximum mandate for change. That description fits Kit Bond. . ."

THE SPRINGFIELD NEWS AND LEADER: "On the basis of Bond's past record and his announced plans for reforming things generally in the State Capital, we think he should be elected Governor. He has our wholehearted support."

Sun Devils Pray A Lot

TEMPE, Ariz. — Prayer is an important factor for football players at Arizona State University here.

The Sun Devils are believed unique among university teams — they have two official chaplains, prayer before and after every game and a special worship on Saturdays when they play.

During games, the Rev. Bert Johnson, director of the Lutheran campus ministry at Arizona State, and Father Gerald Buckley, director of the Catholic Newman Center, mix with players on the sidelines.

The clergymen say that when the going gets rough many team members will stop by to ask for some extra prayer. The Rev. Mr. Johnson goes on every road game, his expenses paid by the National Lutheran Campus Ministry, a joint venture of the American Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Church in America.

At home games, both clergyman lead prayers before and after games. A voluntary worship service, appropriate for both Catholics and Protestants, is held on Saturday afternoons when the team prepares for the game action.

Coach Frank Kush, ranked third in the nation among active coaches in terms of won-lost record, insists on the prayer after games "regardless of win or lose."

The guppy was named for discovered the tropical fish the Rev. R. J. L. Guppy, who in 1866 on Trinidad.

Candidates Reflect Old Biblical Conflict

FOR NOVEMBER 5, 1972

Scripture: Daniel 6;
Matthew 22:15-22
Acts 5:17-29

THE CHURCH IN THE SECULAR STATE

Christians daily must make major decisions. Many of these result from conflicts that arise from living under two sovereignties, the church and the state.

Today's memory lesson is one of the most quoted Scriptures: "Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's." Many Christians find this difficult to explain.

Certainly we need Christ's wisdom to understand what is God's and what is the government's. And unfortunately many of us use hypocritical dodges to avoid obeying either God or the state.

In turning to history we find few answers. We do discover many instances when the organized church sought to control the state. One example was the role played by the Pilgrims in our early history.

Today our churches vary in their view as to the best way to separate the church from the state. Some religious leaders favor the distribution of tax money to pay for books for religious-sponsored schools.

Still other religious leaders refuse to accept government loans when the interest rates are below those charged others.

Certainly we have come a long way in our views. The late John F. Kennedy broke the anti-Catholic barrier to the White House.

How far should the church move toward an active role in our political affairs? In the past there have been incidents when the leaders in a totalitarian state sought to control the church. Hitler and Stalin are examples.

In recalling his early years in Nazi Germany Albert Einstein wrote, "I never had any special interest in the Church before, but now I feel a great affection and admiration because the Church alone had the courage and persistence to stand for intellectual truth and moral freedom."

Jesus believed Rome should be paid taxes for the services it provided the people. People should pay tribute to Jesus for life, the fruitful seasons, and the blessedness of a new life in the Kingdom.

When the state becomes unjust, materialistic, militaristic, and irresponsible, the church should step in and act.

As Christians we are obligated to become more informed, dedicated and vocal about our government. When we react as Christians should, our government will be better.

On the other hand, we are not true Christians if we become subservient and complacent. If we become members of the silent majority we fail to act as God wants His followers to act.

Christians are expected to live as citizens of earth and of Heaven, setting godly examples for all to follow. Unfortunately, our young people are upset over the double standards of conduct for children and adults.

And some persons fear we Americans have grown soft and have lost our desire to resist those who would destroy Christianity. Too often we take the easy way.

We must recognize that we live in a pluralistic society. The rights and feelings of all people must be considered.

We must avoid rumors or hearsay stories. We must not insist that everyone believe and act as we do.

The church and the state must cooperate. They can in child-care centers, low-cost housing projects, nursing and retirement homes, hospitals, schools, etc.

The state can guarantee peaceful assembly and assure us police and fire protection. And both can work to make the world worth saving. Neither should "rubber-stamp" the actions of the other.

What is God's and what is Caesar's is impossible to answer with a simple "yes" or "no." It requires thoughtful study.

NEW YORK (AP) — Both are expressly religious men. Both have disciplined Protestant backgrounds. Yet the two major candidates for the U. S. presidency reflect long-time tensions in Christianity.

They display differences that "have polarized Protestants right down the line and also Roman Catholics in recent years," says the Rev. Charles P. Henderson Jr., who has made special studies of the two men's religious attitudes.

As he analyzes it, President Nixon manifests the personally focused religion, linked to revivalism and Americanism, while Sen. George McGovern views religious principles as standing in criticism of the nation and demanding its reform.

McGovern combines the "prophetic and patriotic" while Nixon blends the "pious and patriotic," the Rev. Mr. Henderson said in an interview. "It's the old Biblical conflict between the priestly and prophetic traditions.

"The priest is the one who sanctifies society's institutions and assures its people that everything will be all right despite the problems. The prophet is the one who sticks thorns in the flesh, who speaks with righteous indignation and says the problems must be resolved."

The difference, as commonly expressed in modern friction among church members, is between emphasizing the personal inner solace of faith, or stressing application of gospel standards in action to rectify society's ills.

The Rev. Mr. Henderson, 31, a United Presbyterian clergyman and assistant chaplain at Princeton University, has turned out a new book, "The Nixon Theology," published by Harper and Row. He also has gathered material on McGovern's religious stance, and interviewed him about it.

Between the two, he said, Methodist McGovern is more keenly versed in theology, having once attended seminary, served as a student pastor, and still keeping up with current scholarly journals in the field.

"He tends to be quite unusual in this regard," the Rev. Mr. Henderson said. "He's aware of contemporary church issues. On the other hand, Nixon's emphasis is on simple faith as part of the Amerian culture."

The connection — of faith and nation — is detailed in Henderson's book.

While Nixon is a Quaker, his closest religious associates have been popular clergymen of other traditions such as Southern Baptist evangelist Billy Graham and Dutch Reformed minister Norman Vincent Peale. Officials of mainline Protestant bodies complain he has mostly shunned contacts with them although such contacts were extended regularly by his precedessors.

In contrast, McGovern has been active in church organizational affairs, serving as a Methodist delegate to the 1968 World Council of Churches Assembly, and chairing its committee on race. He says he was influenced as a young man by works of theologian Walter Rauschenbusch who renewed emphasis in this century on the gospel's social implications.

Both candidates however, are "self-consciously religious," "The Rev. Mr. Henderson said. "Both see their political careers as kind of a religious vocation, as the highest calling they can pursue in serving humanity."

Both also reflect the Protestant "work ethic," believing that "hard work is good for the economy and good for the soul," he said.

At the same time, he added, Nixon stresses a "moral absolutism" that is part of that tradition, while McGovern stresses ideas of "brotherhood, cooperation, and non-violence" which are another side of the same tradition.

But their classic difference, he said, is in the tension between personal and social dimensions of religion, both of which are valid aspects if kept together but which in isolation become points of conflict.

Churchman's View Of the Campaign

By REV. DAVID POLING

No matter what your party loyalty and preference, you have to agree that this has been a dreary presidential campaign. Gone are the days of debates between candidates.

The major Democratic thrust seems to be a panel of newsmen asking Sen. George McGovern if he really said that the Nixon administration was evil. The Republican response is having Mrs. Nixon open a day-care center in South Nowhere.

For some, the most amazing distraction of this non-campaign was the remark by a Nixon staffer that "the biggest liar in our class at school was the preacher's kid." That gives you an idea of how some individuals weigh the issues of the hour as well as their attitude toward clergymen.

For the larger American community, this political year is simply a disaster. Blame the parties, the candidates, the people, for all have contributed to the heaviness of the hour. Issues seem to have vanished. Discussion and debate is limited to bumper-stickers and 20-second broadcasts. Pollsters keep showing us the percentage points, telling us that numbers are more important than issues, with the undecided vote looking larger every day.

Some churchmen have responded to the question posed by Christianity and Crises, "What at Stake in '72," which offers some hope of intelligence, even in the waning hours of a boring campaign.

Harvey Cox believes that policy differences are no longer fought out in general elections. Like France, Germany, England, the differences between parties is more obscure, with administration replacing politics and negotiation the agency of political change. Cox concludes, "It could well be that Mike Harrington's dream coalition turns out to consist of students, blacks, working people, and minorities who would rather depend on personal advancement, luck and connections to satisfy their needs than on social change."

William Stringfellow sees the primary issue in the erosion of rule of law. "The Nixon regime has extraordinarily accentuated the constitutional crises. Whether one speaks of the war or the Watergate espionage, court appointments or manipulation of grand juries . . . lawless arrests or preventive detention . . . the premise of this administration is that authority is a law unto itself."

Roger Shinn expresses the thought harbored by many when he writes, "I think the stakes in this election are great, and I know what I hope for. I hope for a house-cleaning in Washington that will scrub out the debris from two administrations, Democratic and Republican, and for a reversal of present policies that will restore credibility to government and revive the old-fashioned assumption, forgotten in the last decade, that the White House tells the people the truth."

More Taxes?

"I'm absolutely opposed to any form of tax increase." That's how Ed Dowd feels about a tax increase. He also says "While my opponent has made several different tax increase proposals, I believe more efficiency in government will give us all the money we need now. Let's make sure we're doing the best with what we have before we go asking for more." If you feel the same way about tax increases, then Ed Dowd is your man for Missouri's Governor.

GOOD SAMARITANS TAKE THE BITTERNESS OUT OF 'HOME SWEET HOME'

To this youngster growing up in a makeshift tent city, there's supreme irony in the romantic notion: "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home." Americans who contribute every year to Catholic Relief Services Thanksgiving Clothing Campaign take a more realistic view of the poverty that plagues millions in underdeveloped countries. Taken to the nearest Catholic church in November, your gifts of clothing and blankets will lend a touch of sweetness to bleak and bitter lives.

Wives Enjoy Sports

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

BETHANY, Conn. (AP) — If you want to keep your husband happy, get involved with his enthusiasm for sports. Wives of well-known sports figures back up their men, not only at their professional sports, but accompanying them on their for-fun sports trips.

Recently athletes' wives watched their husbands.

Tom Mitchell (Baltimore Colts), Len St. Jean (New England Patriots) Jerry Grote (New York Mets) Ralph Kiner, sportscaster (Mets) and former baseball star, and basketball's Jim Ard of the New York Nets as they competed in the Winchester Sports Celebrity Trap and Skeet tournament. The tournament involved shooting at clay targets with shotguns.

The wives had traveled to the grounds by bus with their husbands and other team members, including football players John Elliot and Gus Hollman of the Jets, Spider Lockhart and Willie Williams of the Giants and Julius Adams of the Patriots.

MRS. RALPH KINER and her labrador retriever, Barklee, are on hand to see Kiner compete in a shooting competition.

"Companionship is an important ingredient of marriage," observed jolly Barbara Kiner in explaining why she was there. "Women should look for more opportunities to learn sports their husbands enjoy, and accompany them whenever they are invited.

"To be happy, a husband should have the things that give him relaxation and pleasure, and if he does, your own life with him will be happier," she continued. "A man needs something to help him unwind whether he is a business man, baseball player or whatever. How can there be happiness in a home if a man is constantly put on the defensive about the simple pleasures he enjoys?"

While their husbands performed for prizes, the wives got a little target instruction from a pro.

"It is the first time I ever held a gun in my hand," exclaimed petite Rena St. Jean. "I like shooting at the clay targets, but I couldn't shoot a living thing."

"Maybe you could kill a snake in an emergency," said blonde Ella Mitchell, whose husband Tom learned to hunt small game with his father and grandfather when he was a boy. Tom often travels in the dark of night to the eastern shore of Maryland during the duck and goose season, returning the next day after dark, and barely getting a couple of hours sleep, she says.

"My husband learned to shoot as a boy too, with his father in Seattle," explained soft-spoken Joyce Ard. I might be able to shoot something that was plentiful and needed, but I couldn't kill anything that was becoming extinct."

The women enjoyed the target shooting and agreed that learning to handle guns at an early age might be the simplest way to teach respect for them and remove the mystique surrounding them.

"If they showed children in schools how to use guns, I'm convinced there would be less misuse of them, and that probably applies to other things as well," commented Mrs. St. Jean.

The Grotes plan to teach their son, Jeffrey 6, to handle a shotgun as soon as Jerry feels the time is right, said blonde Sharon Grote. She learned to use a gun at an early age growing up in San Antonio and accompanying her father on squirrel hunts. Jerry grew up on a farm in San Antonio and has been shooting since he was 10 years old. She thinks a school safety course would be an excellent idea for parents who have no one to teach their children about guns.

Their gun instructor, Carl Leopold, pointed out that women are easier to teach than boys, who usually have a lot to unlearn. He has just graduated a class of Girl Scouts from his rifle classes, and he has girls and women from nine to forty in his classes.

"Target shooting has really caught on with women. They bring their children for a 10 weeks basic course and wind up getting in a class themselves."

"More women are trying to become interested in sports their husbands pursue. If a woman doesn't understand the game, it isn't any fun, but she should ask her husband to teach her so she can derive pleasure from it," commented Barbara Kiner.

A look through the Want Ad section of today's newspaper will give you an idea of all the different things you can purchase through these small advertising wonders. And multiply that by all the days in the year, and all the years that Want Ads have been serving America . . . clear back to colonial times. It's difficult to even comprehend the number of items that have changed hands during that time . . . and with happy results for everyone concerned . . . well, almost everyone!

Lost Plane Located

THAYER, Mo. (AP) — An airplane and the body of a pilot missing since Sept. 1 on a flight from Searcy, Ark. to Davenport, Iowa, were found Thursday in heavily wooded area some six miles east of here.

Papers on the body identified the body as W. Clay Callaway, 54, Searcy, the highway patrol said.

Civil Air Patrol volunteers, the highway patrol and state conservation officials had searched for several days in central and eastern Missouri for the plane, a small Cessna, after it was reported missing.

GOP Lists Contributors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here, as released by the Committee For the Re-election of the President, is a list of contributors who gave $1,000 or more to the Nixon campaign between Jan. 1, 1971, and March 9, 1972:

ADEPT a dairmen's lobby, Springfield, Mo., $15,000; B. B. Blair, Tulsa, Okla., $1,000; Mr. & Mrs. W. W. Garvey, Wichita, Kan., $1,097; Mrs. Claude C. Harmon, Tulsa, Okla., $1,000; Mrs. John S. Lehman, St. Louis, Mo., $1,000; James S. McDonnell, St. Louis, $5,000.

Democratic Congress Thwarted By Nixion

WASHINGTON-- "The President has not followed the lead of Congress in trying to solve unemployment in a sick economy," Rep. Bill D Burlison of Missouri's 10th congressional district Thursday told Perry County Democrats.

Burlison said unemployment has climbed to and hovered around six per cent since Nixon has been in office.

The representative mentioned legislation passed by Congress which was vetoed by the President, such as the Accelerated Public Works Act of 1971 and the Emergency Employment Act-- each of which he said would have put people to work on much needed projects already authorized and planned.

Burlison also noted that the President was too late in applying wage and price controls which were provided by Congress 18 months before being made effective by the President.

They were also inequitably applied when made effective, resulting in control of wages, but having little impact on prices and profits as the rate of inflation continues at an unacceptable and unabated rate, Burlison said.

McGovern Has Trouble Getting Eagleton Radio Commercial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas Eagleton has been unable to meet a request that he record a 60-second radio spot for the presidential candidacy of George McGovern.

Staff members for both senators deny the incident is a sign of any feuding among them since Eagleton, under urging from McGovern, resigned as the Democratic vice-presidential candidate.

But there are differing versions on why Eagleton hasn't recorded the promotions originally requested by McGovern campaign officials in Eagleton's home state of Missouri.

Eagleton press aide Michael Kelley said Thursday that about two weeks ago a McGovern aide called Eagleton's office to request that Eagleton tape the ad.

Kelley quoted Eagleton's administrative assistant, Douglas Bennett, as replying there were technical objections and questions on the effectiveness of the proposed format.

Bennett, according to Kelley, is still waiting for a member of McGovern's staff to call back with suggestions on improving the broadcast.

Susan Davis, a member of the communications staff of Lawrence F. O'Brien, McGovern campaign coordinator, said she was the person who called Bennett.

She quoted Bennett as saying Eagleton's travel schedule would prevent him from taping the broadcast.

"They weren't very cooperative," she said in a phone interview.

Kelley explained the incident against a backdrop of a request by McGovern that Eagleton do a brief appeal for funds at the tail end of one of McGovern's half-hour paid television broadcasts.

"We told them we'd be delighted to do it," Kelley said.

Kelley said he called McGovern campaign director Frank Mankiewicz to ask when the TV spots would be recorded and Mankiewicz promised he'd call back in a few days.

The call has never come, Kelley said.

Miss Davis said she has arranged with no difficulty radio promotions by Sens. Edmund S. Muskie, Hubert H. Humphrey, Major Leader Mike Mansfield, John Pastore, Edward M. Kennedy, Birch Bayh and House Speaker Cal Albert.

Further complicating relations between the McGovern and Eagleton staffs are a handwritten notation on a newspaper article sent by Bennett to Miss Davis' boss John Stewart, described by Kelley as an old friend of Bennett's.

The article from a Detroit newspaper quoted McGovern sources as saying there were unpublished complications to Eagleton's health beyond the nervous exhaustion which led to McGovern's request that he step aside.

On the article Bennett inscribed the comment: "This isn't making things any better," Miss Davis said.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Scintillating Ride

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Mr. Wimple boarded a train that was so packed with passengers that he grumbled more than the train rumbled. Unable to find a seat, his annoyance diminished, however, when a shapely blonde was pressed right up against him by the crowd. If she had been any closer, in fact, she would have been behind him.

And as the train swayed back and forth as it moved along, causing Mr. Wimple and the bosomy blonde to brush against each other, they exchanged a number of embarrassed smiles. What Mr. Wimple didn't realize was that the scintillating blonde was as lighthanded as she was lightheaded. It wasn't until after he left the train that he realized that she had swiped his wallet.

Blaming the railroad company for his loss, Mr. Wimple sued the railroad company to get back his stolen money.

"It was careless in permitting the train to get so crowded," he complained in court. "It was the crowded condition that enabled my wallet to be hoisted."

"If anyone was careless" retorted the railroad company, "it was Mr. Wimple and not us. Instead of watching the blonde, he should have been watching his wallet. Obviously, he was careless in concentrating on the wrong thing."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the railroad company responsible for Mr. Wimple's loss?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the railroad company could not be held liable for Mr. Wimple's lost wallet unless he could show that his pocket was picked as a direct result of the overcrowding. In this case, concluded the judge, the theft could have been more the result of the sway of the blonde rather than the sway of the crowded train.

(Based upon a 1917 North Carolina Supreme Court Decision)

The Prayer from the Upper Room

Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life. (John 14:6)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, we feel the responsibility which rests upon us in knowing that what we do rather than what we say counts most. Help us to be influences for good today as we work and as we pray. "Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory forever. Amen.

RESPECTABLE LIAR?

Dear Editor

The white stallion looks a little darker and rusty spots are appearing in the shining armor of our modern day Sir Galahad who is out to rescue all Missourians from The Fire Breathing Dragon, but in view of Kit Bond's chain of lies where is the Dragon and who needs the rescuing?

It is no longer a question of did he lie, the frightening part is do we care anymore? has Christopher Bond brought respectability to the shameful act of lieing? Have we further lowered our qualifications for character? Is the time near when we will no longer have any method to measure a decent man against a corrupt man? Does not "Thou shalt not bear false witness" have such great importance as to be included in God's ten commandments? Isn't it silly to support a liar in an important position and continue to tell our young people lieing doesn't pay? When a person lies to get something they cannot have by telling the truth they also steal do they not? Bond's lies were for personal gain so who audits the auditor?

Apparently lieing is Mr. Bond's bag so how does he judge those whose bag is smoking pot, free sex, obscene movies, hard dope, and stealing? Is Bond not a contributor to our declining morals?

Mr. Bond is a natural for this New Political Strategy that has successfully swept across our nation where if you disagree or even question their motives you are branded as radicals, revolutionaries, or unpatriotic, ungrateful, biased, a liar, Communist sympathizer or any undesirable label to keep your mouth shut and I'll probably catch more hell for saying he lied than he did for lieing.

This wealthy heir filed non residency forms and avoided paying sales taxes on his automobiles and paid no income taxes in Missouri for at least three years. The other citizens paid their taxes (including the poor) and now Bond wants to govern these people and use their taxes to increase his wealth via the Governors mansion. These people should be Bond's governor he has not earned the right to be theirs.

Us Bootheel farmers wouldn't trust a liar with the keys to our pickup truck on Saturday nite but are we less particular with the keys to the governors mansion?

Entertainers Were A Hoax

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Two Hollywood entertainers will not appear in Southern Missouri in behalf of the McGovern-Shriver ticket as supposedly arranged by a mysterious blonde, says Dr. Charles Ash.

Ash, of Springfield, 7th District co-ordinator of the campaign, said Thursday preparations for Marlo Thomas and Peter Lawford were cancelled in Cape Girardeau, School of the Ozarks, Lebanon, Springfield and Joplin when the appearances could not be confirmed and the woman disappeared.

Ash said the woman, identified as Mrs. Carolyn DuPont, also claimed she had arranged for the Temptations, a singing group, to appear in Kansas City and St. Louis.

He said she moved to Springfield in May and worked one day a week in McGovern headquarters. After the Democratic National Convention Mrs. DuPont worked full time in the Greene County Democratic headquarters.

Ash said she left for Hollywood Sunday.

RAIN has slowed harvest in Southeast Missouri, where nearly four inches has accumulated in low-lying areas of the Bootheel. This cotton field on the Billy Aycock farm near Parma was ready for the picker when the rain began two weeks ago. Another week of dry weather is needed, however, before thoughts of entering the field can be considered.

Rain Keeps Harvest At Halt

Rain has kept the Bootheel harvest at a virtual standstill for the past week.

Only three days were suitable for fieldwork last week, according to the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service in Columbia.

The cotton crop is 43 per cent picked -- sharply behind the 65 per cent at this time last year. Although farmers have picked some cotton between rains in fields firm enough to support pickers, most gins have slowly eliminated their backlog of seed cotton.

The state's corn crop is 47 per cent harvested sharply behind the 71 per cent harvested last year. Less than half of the corn in the northern third of the state has been harvested, while half or more is harvested in other areas.

Soybean harvest progressed to 52 per cent of completion. This compares to 69 per cent completion at this time a year ago. Harvest has surpassed the halfway point in the northern and central thirds of the state. However, the Bootheel region lags behind with less than one-third of the beans harvested.

Fifth-six per cent of the grain sorghum has been harvested. A year ago 77 per cent of the crop was out of the field. Harvest is more than two-thirds completed in the west central, southwest and Bootheel regions, while half or less has been harvested over the rest of the state.

Fall plowing continues with 26 per cent of the plowing completed in the state, compared to 42 per cent at this time last year. Fall seedings are 73 per cent completed -- the same percentage as a year ago. Pastures are in mostly good condition and soil moisture is adequate throughout most of the state.

Nixon Betrayed Trust, Stevenson Charges

"Whom can we trust -- which man, which party, which candidate? Nixon has been fast and loose with the trust of the American People," Illinois Sen. Adlai Stevenson told an overflow crowd at the Bootheel Democratic Rally at the Ramada Inn in Miner last night.

Stevenson was speaker for the biennial rally which drew over 600 persons from throughout the Bootheel area. He was introduced by Sen. Stuart Symington of St. Louis, who called for support of the entire Democratic ticket in next Tuesday's general election.

The Illinois senator charged that President Richard Nixon has sought to starve all democratic programs of the 1960s and has created the most severe economic failure since the 1950s.

He accused the Nixon administration's agriculture department of selling out the farmers and taxpayers, noting that in the recent grain deal with the Soviet Union there was evidence that advance notice was given to grain dealers and not to farmers. Grain dealers profited $150 million of the taxpayers money, he charged.

Stevenson said peace could have come to South Vietnam long ago if decisions were made "by Americans in Washington and not an autocratic regime in Saigon."

All the state candidates' wives were guests at the rally along with gubernatorial candidate Edward Dowd of St. Louis and Jim Spain, of Bloomfield, candidate for attorney general.

Sen. J. F. Pat Patterson of Caruthersville was presented a plaque for outstanding service in the Missouri State Senate. Patterson is president pro tem of the Senate and for 10 years served as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee. He is retiring from the Senate this year.

In a brief news conference prior to the rally, Dowd spoke on issues of the campaign. He said capital punishment should be retained and when questioned on narcotics laws, said the penalty for narcotics users should not be reduced.

Dowd was confident of his win next Tuesday, stating that he doesn't abide by the polls which show the race to be close. He believes he'll win with a 250,000 plurality.

At the close of the evening Senator Stevenson again stated the Republican party cannot be trusted and endorsed George McGovern, stating that he is "good and honest" and that he will work for a new beginning for America.

Patrol Site Up To Chief, Say Dowd & Bond

Both candidates for governor, Republican Christopher (Kit) Bond and Democrat Ed Dowd have announced they will let the highway patrol decide whether or not the Troop E Headquarters should move to Sikeston if they are elected.

The only difference between their positions is that Bond hopes to appoint a new superintendent of the patrol.

The decision to move the patrol headquarters from Poplar Bluff to Sikeston was announced Oct. 27, by Col. E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, superintendant of the highway patrol.

Bond issued a statement Tuesday afternoon through an aide, Charlie Valiere, and Dowd spoke to reporters last night prior to the Democratic Rally at the Ramada Inn.

Valiere said Bond's concern is that the decision to move the headquarters should not become a political issue and that it should be on its own merits.

Valiere said if Bond is elected there will probably be a new superintendent of the patrol. The decision on where to locate the troop headquarters will rest with the new man.

"I don't understand the thinking behind moving the headquarters and would be inclined to leave it in Poplar Bluff if it is operating effectively," Dowd said.

He added he would be agreeable to the move to Sikeston if studies show the Sikeston site is the best location.

The decision is not up to him, Dowd said, it should be up to the patrol.

The decision to move the headquarters from Poplar Bluff to Sikeston was made after Gov. Warren Hearnes vetoed a section of an appropriation bill that would have required the headquarters to be located in Poplar Bluff.

A tug of war, primarily between Sikeston and Poplar Bluff, quickly got underway. Other cities, including, Bloomfield, Dexter, and Cape Girardeau, dropped out of the bidding when the patrol discarded them as suitable locations.

David Pence, city manager of Poplar Bluff, is still threatening legal action over the move. He refuses to discuss exactly what the city plans, but promised "we will take action."

Pence said city officials have not decided what course of action to be taken, but promised they would decide soon.

Poison Victims Are Okay

MEMPHIS — Two Caruthersville, Mo., youths who drank poison from a bottle they took from a grocery store were reported in "excellent" condition and may be released today from Le Bonheur Children's Hospital here, a hospital physician said.

The Pemiscot County sheriff's office said four youths stole a whisky bottle they thought contained liquor but was actually filled with Diazinon 4 E, a powerful pest control poision, from a combination grocery store-pest control firm Wednesday in Caruthersville.

Police said two of the youths sampled the posion and did not like its taste. The other two drank more of the contents, became ill and were rushed to a doctor's clinic in Caruthersville, then transferred to Le Bonheur. Original reports said all four youths had been hospitalized, but police say only two were taken to Memphis.

The youths, all juveniles, were on their lunch break from George Washington Junior High School when they stole and drank the poison.

NEW MADRID — A color television set was reported stolen between 8:30 and 11 a.m. Thursday in a break-in at the home of Junior Walker near Fraley, according to the New Madrid County sheriff's department. Entry was made by prying open a front door.

Sikeston Man Shot To Death

One man is dead and another man is in Missouri Delta Community Hospital after a shootout Thursday night at the home of Ed Guyton, three miles west of Bertrand at the intersection of Route O and Highway 62.

Dead is Grover C. Dorrough, 64, of 110 Petty St. Guyton, 66, was taken to the hospital with a bullet wound in the cheek. Scott county Deputy Sheriff Tom Dover said doctors plan to remove the bullet from Guyton's cheek today.

Dover, who investigated the shooting, said the men were arguing over $7 Guyton was said to have owed Alice Shaw, Dorrough's common-law wife. During the argument, Guyton allegedly pulled a .22-caliber pistol and shot Dorrough in the right arm and in the stomach.

Dorrough then pulled his .22-caliber pistol and shot Guyton in the left cheek. Dorrough was dead when Dover arrived on the scene.

Dover said Guyton would not be charged until after an autopsy is held to determine the cause of death. The autopsy will be performed today.

Coroner Gene Nunnelee said an autopsy was being performed because the wounds did not seem to be sufficient to cause death unless the bullets hit vital organs. He said at this point he was not certain Dorrough died from the gunshot wounds.

The body is at Dotson Funeral Home where arrangements are pending.

The time is fast approaching when you can quit thinking about who you are going to vote for and make up your mind. We hope that all the people that think President Nixon is sent down from Heaven will think about it some more and think maybe that there might be somebody else that could do just as good, if not better than he does. Of course, at the coffee table, they overwhelm me with my contention that the Senator McGovern is going to win, but they haven't made me change my mind and they are not going to. I believe that there is enough of us screwballs that are going to vote for McGovern that he will beat the rich playboys kingpin.

PARTY PLATFORM WE CAN UNDERSTAND

While we have struggled through the various party platforms, we must admit that many of those thousands of words say practically nothing unless you have an axe to grind on a specific plank.

So our attention was called to the "Tiger Party" platform which the author of same says, "... It is short. It is simple. It is understandable. It is a platform to stand on as well as run on. There are only ten planks."

Here they are:

Individual Dignity -- We pledge to restore and to protect the dignity and the freedom of the individual. We will foster those things which will make Americans proud, innovative, and self-reliant.

Government -- We promise less of it.

Taxes -- We will treat public monies as carefully as though they were our own.

Domestic Economy -- We recognize that wealth is created only through the production of useful goods and services. We will promote productivity, and those who produce will receive greater rewards than those who do not.

Crime and Violence -- Our remedy is simple -- punishment that is swift, sure, and adequate.

Minorities -- We appeal to all minorities to join the majority. We pledge equal opportunity for all, but license for none.

Welfare -- We will help those who are handicapped and those who cannot work. For others, we will provide adequate job training and job opportunities. We will not tolerate the professional poor, or provide a dole for those who will not work.

Environment -- Aggressively, we will seek to improve our environment and the quality of life. We will set attainable goals which we will achieve at a price we can afford.

Foreign Relations -- We will share our know-how with all peoples. We will not try to impose our ideas on them.

Freedom -- We believe that all peoples have the right to freedom of thought and action, so long as such actions do not impinge on the rights of others. We will work to restore that concept of freedom.

NEW YOR(ap) — Some men fear that if the women's liberation movement succeeds and every lady finally becomes the girl of her own dreams the world will be a more difficult one for men.

"No telling what they'll be like then," said one worried male. "It's hard enough to understand them now as slaves and mere sex objects. There's no telling how any man will be able to tell what they'll want when they get everything they think they want."

As a lifelong admirer of women myself, I think this attitude is merely another exhression of outdated masculine chauvinism. Such foreboding is utterly unjustified.

Why should women be any more difficult to get along with in the future than they were in the past or are now? Is the beauty of a rose changed by whether there are a few less or a few more thorns on its stem?

Some things are changeless, and one of them, probably, is the essential nature of women. Women are not as unpredictable as they are thought to be. When you come down to it, they are actually as predictable as a weathercock, except that they respond only to the winds of their own soul.

So, basically, no matter how much she may seem changed on the surface, the willful girl of the future shouldn't be any harder to figure out than the willful woman of today.

The average man can safely bet that a typical liberated woman of tomorrow will still —

Solve the problem of what to do with a leaky package by giving it to a man to carry.

Think she's missing something in life.

Think there must be more to sex than she knows, because otherwise why would so many people talk about it so much.

Is McGovern Picking Up?

Is Senator George McGovern picking up strength in his bid for the presidency of the Unites States on the Democratic ticket? Everything points to the fact that he is. But he still has a long, long way to go.

Not too many days ago, Lou Harris, a national polister with a good reputation, made a speech in which he pointed out that Senator McGovern had gained six points during the month of September in his race against President Nixon. Even with that gain, it did not bring the South Dakota Senator within striking distance of President Nixon.

But a statement Mr. Harris made was even more important than the 6-point edge gained by Senator McGovern in September. Mr. Harris told an audience, or at least he was quoted as having said, that if he were President Nixon he "would be running scared."

Just what was meant by those words was not explained. But one might infer that Senator McGovern was starting to move. Whether or not he can move fast enough in the few remaining weeks remains to be seen. Jimmy the Greek doesn't think too highly of Senator McGovern's chances. One day last week an article showed that Nixon was Jommy the Greek's favorite by 15 to 1 odds. Those are long odds.

President Nixon has declared that he believes it is necessary for him to stay in the White House and run the country rather than getting out on the campaign trail. That sounds well to the American public.

But the President has managed to get out of Washington, D. C., a few times. In recent days he made three campaign trips to large cities. He did very well for himself. He was reported as picking up $1,000,000 in each of the treee cities. That should warm the cockles of his heart.

One wonders just what the President is going to do with all of the campaign money he will have. It has been said—and maybe it is said by envious Democrats—that President Nixon will have a campaign fund of $40,000,000. And that's a lot of money.

Possibly Mr. Nixon believes that with a fund as large as he has and with all of the polls showing him with a substantial lead he doesn't need to get around the country. This newspaper has no way of knowing but we would venture to guess that before the campaign draws to a close Mr. Nixon will be getting out and will find that maybe there isn't as much "homework" in Washington as he thought and he will go a-visiting in the hustings.

INAPPROPRIATE AND UNSOUND

While economists and a number of public officials urge an "incomes policy" or in plain words, price and wage controls, organized labor is reportedly getting set to demand a boost in the minimum wage to at least $2 an hour. Every boost in the minimum wage has meant lessened opportunity and unemployment for beginners, part-time workers and young people, and it has had an escalating effect on wages and salaries all along the line.

This year, with unemployment up and inflation rampant along with talk of tighter controls, it is hard to see how any sort of a case can be made for another step-up in the minimum wage. Perhaps it is time some thought was given to the idea of a minimum profit. According to late reports, corporate profits in 1970 were the lowest since 1945 in relation to gross national production. Unless profit margins remain healthy, it is idle to talk of sustained prosperity. Altogether, this seems like an inappropriate time to indulge in the old political debate over another increase in the minimum wage.

INTO THE VALLEY RODE THE 400

Mort Medway runs an unpretentious delicatessen in Tarzana in the San Fernando Valley. One day a space salesman for the Sunday Los Angeles Times persauded Mort to try a 1 column x 3 inch ad.

The next day a chauffeur drove up in a Rolls Royce and bought 30 pounds of Nathan-style hot dogs with New York mustard which were featured in the ad. Seems his boss in Beverly Hills had a touch of nostalgia.

Flushed with success, Mort repeated the ad the following Sunday, then sat down and wrote the Times a thank-you letter. In it he said, "We have customers coming into our store all the way from Long Beach and Pomona ... In the 2-week period our sales have risen 25%!"

Funny what 6 inches of advertising can do, isn't it?"

TIME TO CUT BAIT

Listening to some superannuated labor leaders talk about going fishing on election day, we were reminded of the young zealots who shouted "never" to Hubert Humphrey's nomination four years ago. Quite a number of Senator Eugene McCarthy's dedicated followers did, in fact, exercise their right not to vote. And they got Richard Nixon and have denounced him since.

George Meany, I. W. Abel and their colleagues at the stagnant peak of the labor movement have limited affection for young radicals. But this hierarchy, whose progressive past is being spoiled by present aimlessness, seems inclined to follow the footsteps of those it resents most. Messrs. Meany and Abel do not like Richard Nixon because, they say, he has worked against the interests of the working man. They do not like George McGovern because, as one of them put it, he is "too soft on Communism," whatever that hackneyed phrase means.

Perhaps Messrs. Meany and Abel and their colleagues should cease trying to be experts on foreign policy and pay more attention to pocketbook issues. The great Plato, in one of his less quoted passages, pointed out that "The punishment suffered by the wise who refuse to take part in the government, is to live under the government of bad men."

JUSTICE TRIUMPHS

A MAN WHO HAD MARRIED three wives was brought before the King for punishment. The king called in his counselors and asked them to devise the worst possible punishment for the offender, even death itself. The wise men did not order his execution, ruling it would be still worse for him to live with all three wives at the same time. Two weeks later, the man committed suicide.

A LESSON FOR PAUL BUNYAN

Paul Bunyan legends about heroic exploits in the land of the big trees and strong men are enthralling. They are also misleading, so far as the timber industry is concerned. Many people still think timber companies hurt rather than help the forest lands in which they operate. In an effort to help the public view timber harvesting and forest managements as they are contemporarily practiced, one of the largest timber companies* in the country conducted a Paul Bunyan sized "road show" of a typical logging operation and reforestation project.

The show ran for 23 days while to company removed trees from its land along a highway leading into a recreation area in the Cascade Mountains in Washington State. It drew thousands of people from 30 states and five foreign countries. Many of those attending had never seen the modern equipment used by loggers. One machine was operated by a team, a member of which used a two-way radio to direct the placing of grapples that pick up logs, thus doing away with the old-fashioned and dangerous business of fastening steel cables to logs by hand. The show drew interesting comment from spectators, such as, "I would like to see this made available during (the) school year to school groups," and "We are most impressed with the conservation procedures."

A part of the show was the reforestation that follows logging. As soon as the area was logged, fir seedlings grown in the company's high-yield forest nurseries were planted. In connection with this, spectators had an opportunity to view the reforestation part of the company's tree farming, as well as the company's High Yield Forestry program. It opened up 14 miles of logging roads for self- guided tours which let visitors see young trees invarious age groups and get an idea of what logging land looks like in coming years as new trees grow.

Paul Bunyan was a great fellow in his day; but, in our era of sustained-yield logging, multiple land use, conservation and recreation, he would have a lot to learn.

THE BIBLE AND THE CONSTITUTION

There are many people in this country who are struggling to be men of God. There are more who are aware of God, but don't really relate to Him. Many more don't know how to relate to Him.

So are there many people in this country who are fighting to save the U. S. Constitution. More pay lip service to the Constitution, but don't really respond to it. And still more don't know what it's all about.

Struggling believers know of the love and sacrifice of God and they've dedicated their lives to Him. People aware of God, but with no relationship to Him, are often those who gather for teas and socials, but who never scratch the surface. The largest group are those who have heard the scriptures and read of the love of God, but who have known only social believers.

The one and only hope for all these people is God's book, the Bible. In the Bible are found the love, joy, greatness and forgineness of God. The plan of salvation is crystallized for everyone.

Constitution-supporting people know that the outline contained there is our only hope for continued freedom. Many say thay support the Consitution, but if they can get something for themselves, they don't care what the Constitution says. More people see that the Constitution has been turned every way but loose and so the Constitution means nothing to them.

The only answer is to search the Bible for salvation and to study the Constitution to remain free. The Bible and the Constitution: an unbeatable combination. HLH.

Kissinger's Papers:
How Meany Tackled
The Left For Nixon
By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON-- Had anyone snatched Henry Kissinger's attache case as he was heading for Paris Oct. 6, the thief would have found among the secret doucments one sheaf of papers soon to be declassified. This was an advance copy of a Lou Harris political poll.

It was to be released in a few days, but Dr. Kissinger showed it to the powerful North Vietnamese lady and others including Le Duc Tho-- the Hanoi negotiating team. It revealed Richard Nixon was some 27 points nationally ahead of George McGovern.

No one can properly state what impact this survey by the organization of Lou Harris, an intimate friend of the Kennedy family and this in Hanoi's eyes above suspicion, had on its powerful Communist party people.

But on Oct. 8, the Hanoi hands made their first real move towards a cease- fire. Henry Kissinger, leaving his image of diplomatic playboy of the Western World, had played it out of strength.

Much of that strength and much of the President's poll power sprang from what at the beginning of this Administration would have appeared to be the least likely of Presidential allies-- strong blocs of labor led by the most uncompromising anti-Communist of all free world leaders, George Meany.

Whenerver the President has needed mass support for some dramatic move he has turned to Meany who, regardless of what the world thinks of the curmudgeon of his 78 years, still is the symbol, virtually the only global symbol, of actual proletarian power anywhere in the non- Communist world. Mocked by the liberal- labor faction, disdained by Sen. McGovern's forces and the candidate himself, the very image of hardheadedness and hard- hatism in which they have painted him has been his strength-- and the President's.

It is this effigy, cigar butt and all, which irks the Peking and Moscow politburos so much. They are "people's" and "Socialist" democracies. They have found it difficult to explain how one bulky whilom plumber has been able to block their sweep of world labor.

Thus when Mr. Nixon needed support of the American military move into Cambodia, Meany signaled the New York building trades in May 1970, his very own base of power on the streets from which he sprang. And they put well over 125,000 hard hats onto those sidewalks of New York. And the demonstrations rolled across the land. They neutralized the splinterlike demonstrations on the campuses in that ancient era.

It was thus when Mr. Nixon mined Hanoi's supply harbors. As he put it at the Oct. 8 Amerito (American— Italian societies) banquet to honor the Laborers' International president Peter Fosco:

"Also I recall in May . . . when I had to make a very hard decision . . . one that I felt was essentail to protect American fighting men . . . when I had to order the mining of the harbors of Haiphong and order the bombings of military installations in North Vietnam. When I did that . . . in attempting to enlist support for that very hard decision it was not necessary for me to call these men. They called and offered their support. For this I am most grateful."

The President looked at Fosco and down along the dais at Meany shrouded in cigar smoke-- and at Mrs. Meany too, now his ardent supporter.

President Nixon has nursed that relationship. He has never failed to thank each of the alleged "hard hats." On Oct. 17, he spoke glowingly of the American labor movement, meaning Meany and colleagues, while entertaining some 30 foreign labor leaders at a White House dining room reception.

The President has not received such a band of visitors before-- union chiefs from 24 nations. But Meany had virtually arranged their trip from Asia, Africa and Latin America.

And Meany has asked Mr. Nixon to sit and rap with them. Meany knows the Left has portrayed both of them as Neanderthals. So Meany wanted the foreign unionists to come and observe our election and the see the President and so tell the Third World that "hard- hatism" was no proletarian betrayal.

On the same day the President wrote a "Dear Teddy" letter to Longshoremen's Thomas Gleason, thanking them and him for support of the White House foreign policy. The note was signed with the personal "RN."

About that time the AFL—CIO "American Federationist," edited by Meany, was on the desks of 150,000 labor leaders, editors, policy makers, et al. In it was a searing attack by Meany on McGovern, who, though never mentioned by name, is accused of "neoisolationism . . . based on a misjudgment of the basic aims of the totalitarian forces.

"The latter continue to seek world conquest and domination through political blackmail, subversion, military threats and aggression," wrote Meany. "(McGovern's proposals) only play into the hands of the Communists."

Then comes: "Even the most fervent pledge to help assure Israel's security and survival is worthless if the defense cuts proposed by the advocates of a neo- isolationist foreign policy were made . . . Such measures would adversely affect the situation in the Middle East . . . Israel continues to be endangered, to need strong American protection . . Moreover, the protection of Israel cannot be isolated from America's overall military power . . . Neoisolationism and effective aid to Israel are incompatible."

These are Meany's words to his political legionnaires in the campaign's final days. It's been a long road, but the odd couple, Mr. Labor and Mr. Nixon, marched it shoulder to shoulder. The road will fork soon enough but not until it has rolled past Paris, Hanoi and Election Day.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON— In a move that could upset the delicate diplomacy between Washington and Peking, the United States is delivering two submarines to Communist China's arch enemy, Chiang Kai- shek.

The transfer was approved by the President's national security adviser, Henry Kissinger, in a secret order dated October 16.

White House sources stress that the subs had been promised to Chiang several months ago and that the delivery violates no agreement with Peking. "We have been meticulous about keeping our agreements with the People's Republic of China," a top policymaker told us.

Kissinger also placed strict conditions on Chiang's use of the subs. The order to Defense Secretary Mel Laird emphasized:

"With reference to your memorandum of September 13, 1972, regarding provision of two diesel- powered submarines to the Republic of China (Taiwan), the transfer is approved subject to the following conditions:

"-- That the first ROC submarine crew's underway training not begin until late November.

"-- That we obtain from the ROC, as a condition of the transfer of the two submarines, a formal written understanding that the submarines are to be used exclusively for anti-submarine warfare training.

"-- That whatever press guidance covering both the beginning of underway training and the formal transfers of the two submarines be cleared with the White House."

--Junketing Jesuit--

A junketing Jesuit, who was sent to Vietnam by the White House at the taxpayers' expense, came back loaded with political ammunition.

The outspoken priest, Dr. John McLaughlin, is now making campaign speeches for President Nixon on the Vietnam issue. As evidence that the good father's Vietnam lectures are strictly political, all his travel expenses are picked up by the Committee to Re-elect the President.

Father McLaughlin's speeches are so militant that he sometimes seems to contradict the official White House line. He appears to disagree with White House negotiator Henry Kissinger on the prospects for a Communist takeover, which McLaughlin warns will mean a "bloodbath" with up to one million victims in South Vietnam.

In contrast with Kissinger's moderate tone toward North Vietnam, the bluff, bearish priest cries out that North Vietnam is "the most aggressive, brutalizing and austere government on earth." He also extols the bombing of the North.

His views on Vietnam have changed radically in the last two years. Father McLaughlin came to President Nixon's attention in 1970 when the goodly friar ran a spirited, pro-peace campaign against Sen. John Pastore, D— R.I. The President was so impressed with McLaughlin's slam- bang style that he recruited the priest as an adviser.

Father McLaughlin became close to the inner circle of the National Security Council, the White House policymaking arm whose works and finances are hush- hush. The council sent the friar to Vietnam last spring ostensibly to study refugees, war casualties, ecology damage and the like.

But on his return, the White House dispatched him at least seven times to make sabre-rattling political speeches based on his Vietnam trip.

Senator Lee Metcalf, D— Mont., learned of the clerical campaigner and fired off an inquiry to Defense Secretary Mel Laird. The letter was referred to the Pentagon Chaplains Board whose executive secretary, Col. Duncan Stewart, wrote back to Metcalf disclaiming any responsibility for Father McLaughlin's junket.

"The command chaplain (in Vietnam) had no knowledge of his visit until he met him at a luncheon in Saigon," wrote Colonel Stewart. "Father McLaughlin is an adviser and writer for President Nixon."

We reached Father McLaughlin at the White House. He explained that the National Security Council had wanted him to look at the war "from a humanitarian perspective." He saw nothing wrong with using the information he gathered on his trip for political purposes.

Secret White House polls show an alarming number of voters are drifting away from President Nixon into the doubtful column. This is the reason the Republicans are putting on the steam during the final week of the campaign... When Mike Mansfield gives up the Senate Democratic leadership, two powerful senators will jostle for the right to step into his shoes. Already squaring off for the showdown are Minnesota's Hubert Humphrey and West Virginia's Bob Byrd. Senator Ted Kennedy doesn't want the leadership and has promised his support to Humphrey.

List Shows Thirteen Donors Give Nixon $3.5 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirteen wealthy donors headed by million-dollar contributor W. Clement Stone gave President Nixon's re-election campaign $3.5 million in hitherto secret contributions.

Their names were on a list of 283 donors who poured a total of $5 million into the Nixon campaign between Jan. 1, 1971, and March 9, 1972- before a new federal law required the naming of campaign contributors.

The list of persons who gave $1,000 or more during the period was made public Thursday night by the Committee for the Re-Election of the President as the result of an agreement between the committee and Common Cause.

The self-styled citizens' lobby had filed suit to force disclosure of the donors' names.

Another list of donors who gave from $100 to $999 during the period is to be disclosed Sunday.

Still secret are the names of contributors between March 10 and April 7, the day the new law went into effect. The March 10 cutoff marked the final reporting date under the old Corrupt Practices Act.

Republican fund-raisers pulled in millions of dollars just before the April 7 deadline so the contributors could avoid public identification.

Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential candidate, began disclosing contributions during the primary elections and made a major issue of Nixon's refusal to do the same.

Stone, chairman of Combined Insurance Co. of America, had said publicly he gave more than $500,000 to the Nixon campaign. In 1968, he was the largest known Nixon donor, giving $500,000, and apparently will hold that rank this year. He has given another $27,500 in recorded contributions since April 7.

After the report was released, Stone told newsmen in Chicago that the correct figure actually was more than $1 million. But he declined to say how much more. He said he objects to having the contributions described as secret.

"There is no reason for me to openly publicize what we do," he said. "It seems to me a private matter."

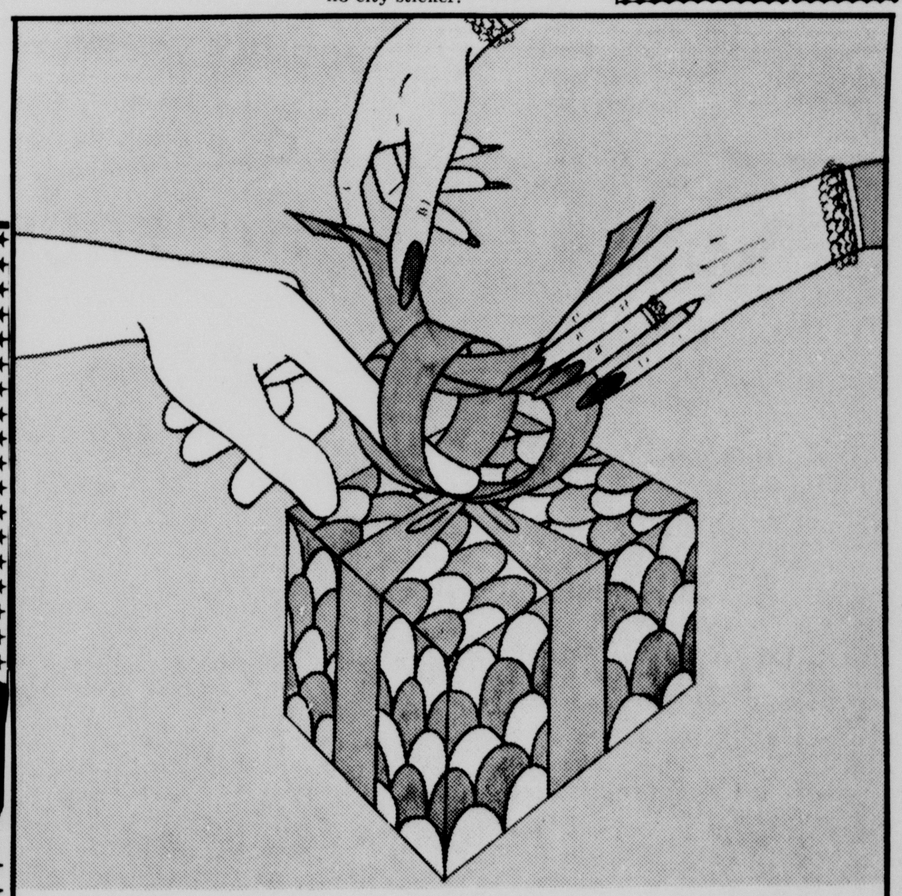

Richard M. Scaife of Pittsburgh, heir to the Mellon banking fortune, was listed for $800,000 in the report. He has said publicly he gave $990,000.

Four dairy-industy committees were listed for $232,500 which they gave several months after receiving a favorable government ruling on milk prices.

Ann Landers

Wife Loses Husband To Bachelor Brother

Dear Ann Landers: I lost my husband to another man. Before you jump to conclusions, let me explain. We are both 52. Arthur and I had a good marriage until a few years ago. Our children are grown and on their own. Arthur is what you might call peculiar, but he is not queer. The "other man" is his bachelor brother.

The minute Arthur gets up in the morning he telephones Brother to ask if he had a good night's sleep. Then they plan what they're going to do that evening.

The two of them act like teen- agers. I am not included in any of their activities. Brother has dinner with us every night, unless he and Arthur decide to eat out. Brother rarely speaks to me and I have given up trying to be friendly. I consider him an arch rival who has taken my husband away.

Please give me some advice before I crack up. Or have I cracked up already? Impossible Situation

Dear I.P.: Your signature describes your dilemma. What you fail to understand is that no one can be taken over unless he wants to be. Your husband is a willing partner in this grossly immature involvement.

Would your life be better or worse without him? This is the question you must ask yourself. A woman of 52 is too young to dry up and blow away. Base your decision on what is best for YOU. Arthur has already decided what is best for him.

Dear Ann Landers: Here's a word of encouragement for "Hooked in Lansing" who will soon be a teen- ager and is still sucking her thumb.

When I was six years old my folks tried everything to get me to stop. Nothing worked. The doctor told Mom to leave me alone.

I am 18 now and will be married in October. I quit sucking my thumb three months ago when I announced my engagement. It happened almost overnight. I don't know if it was my pride, love, being loved, or a combination of all three. If I could kick the habit anyone can. Please tell "Lansing" I'm rooting for her, Ann.--- Unhooked in Oakland.

Dear Oak: Nothing helps like having someone say, "I did it, you can, too." This is the concept of Alcoholics Anonymous, Weight Watchers and Recovery, Inc. Thanks for the encouragement.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for that broad who thinks people are stingy if they don't take passengers along "as a favor" since they were "going anyway.." Listen, Lady, the average automobile depreciates at the rate of 7c a mile. You didn't say how far it was to Florida, and I can imagine what you meant by " a few personal belongings." Maybe a small sewing machine, a hair dryer, a couple of wig boxes, and a bird cage.

When I was in high school my dad gave me orders. If I carried passengers to football games or barn dances, they had to chip in for the gas and oil. If a tire blew, they had to kick in for that, too. In other words, no freeloading. These are darned good rules to live by.--- Fair in San Antonio

Dear Fair: I suspect you're about my vintage. In those days (antedeluvian, of course) a buck was a lot harder to come by and a car was a big deal. I agree that a person who travels several hundred miles as a passenger should offer to share the cost of the gas and oil but short trips should be favors.

Two Season Firsts Predicted

Sports Corner By Ron Jaynes

Oh, no . . .

I've lost the predictions of our weekly panel of guessers and face the task of picking tonight's winners alone.

With the rush of the basketball season approaching and the end of the football campaign only two games away for teams that fail to make the playoffs, it generally causes some problems.

So, without any assistance, I take on the job of giving you my expert opinion on how the games will turn out.

Here goes ...

Poplar Bluff at Sikeston --- The Bulldogs' offensive line has given only a pair of respectable performances all season long ... and of late has been at a season low, being part of the current three-game SHS losing skid. The forward wall will have to rise to the occasion tonight and protect Bill Colwick, so he can pass and open holes for the running of Curtis Bean, Jesse Smith and Tom DeRoush. Many think the Bulldogs are quitters ... Are they? I think not ... SHS 21-13.

Cape Central at Charleston --- Paul Schermann will probably wrap up the district scoring title tonight with at least five TDs, while he paces his squad to a convincing victory over the one-win Bluejays. But maybe I shouldn't take the Jays too lighlty. They have shown signs of becoming a good team at times during the season ... How about a conservative score of ... CCHS 56, CHS 13.

Jackson at Perryville --- What a battle this shapes up to be ... Both are seeking second place in the Northern Division ... as most teams have conceded the title to Cape ... A playoff berth could be riding on the outcome .... The Indians have their work cut out for them ... especially since it's being played on the Pirates' home ground ... The best way to decide the winner is a flip of the coin ... and JHS is the winner ... 22-19.

Kennett at Dexter --- Those Bearcats are an unpredictable group ... especially when I'm trying to figure out the situation ... The Indians have a good team, but I think the Bearcats have the talent to topple the Tribe. It won't be an easy task, however. Comparative scores show that the Tribe should be at least a three-touchdown favorite ... matching the Sikeston scores with both games ... I'll take Dexter and a one-point margin, 21-20.

Chaffee at Caruthersville --- No doubt about it ... the Tigers are the favorites ...although the game should be a free scoring affair ... Caruthersville 35, Chaffee 27.

Gideon at East Prairie --- A celebration is certain to erupt when the final horn sounds ending tonight's battle ... Because it will mark the first win of the seson for the Eagles ... East Prairie 13, Gideon 6.

Malden at Union City, Tenn. --- Coach Jack Phillips' Green Wave have their hands full tonight when they take the long journey into neighboring Tennessee ... for a match with Union City, a team that has been among the top gridiron squads in that state in recent years ...

Injuries have taken their toll on the Wave and, for that reason, we must go with the host ... UCHS 28, Malden 15.

Portageville at Scott City --- This should be a dandy contest ... The Rams are riding an eight-game winning streak and the Bulldogs have been going great guns since early in the season ... A person might be wise to predict a tie ... But I'll have to go with the mild upset ... PHS 21-20.

Doniphan and South Pemiscot will be victims of their visitors tonight.

Because of a light schedule next week, I'll tackle the job alone and get warmed up for the fast - charging basketball season.

The winner of the top prognosticator award will be announced next week after tabulation of the first eight weeks of guessers.

I've enjoyed working with our fearless reader panel of guessers and hope they'll all return next season and join in on the fun ...

Warriors Top League

OAKLAND (AP) — With Cazzie Russell, Rick Barry and Nate Thurmond teaming for 63 points, the Golden State Warriors defeated the Portland Trailblazers 118-104 for their fourth straight victory.

The victory Thursday night kept the Warriors a half game ahead of the Los Angeles Lakers in the Pacific Division of the National Basketball Association. The game was the only one played in the NBA Thursday. There were no games in the American Basketball Association.

Russell paced a third-quarter rally which brought the Warriors from 10 points behind to the victory. He tallied 23 points, seven in the third quarter.

Barry and Thurmond each had 20 points, with Barry adding 10 assists.

Sidney Wicks paced the Trailblazers with 30 points, 16 in the first quarter. He was scoreless in the second period then began to hit again in the third stanza.

Stadium Collapse Squelched

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Persistent rumors that seeress Jeane Dixon had foretold the collapse Sunday of Arrowhead Stadium, professional football's newest showcase were squelched Thursday, alowith local pride.

"I didn't even know you had an Arrowhead Stadium," Miss Dixoin said in Washington when contacted by the Kansas City Star.

Miss Dixon was rumored to have predicted the fall of the stadium during Sunday's Oakland- Kansas City game.

Woodeshick To Taxi Squad

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Veteran running Back Tom Woodeshick was signed to a taxi squad contract after clearing waivers that the St. Louis football Cardinals had asked on him, a team spokesman said Thursday night.

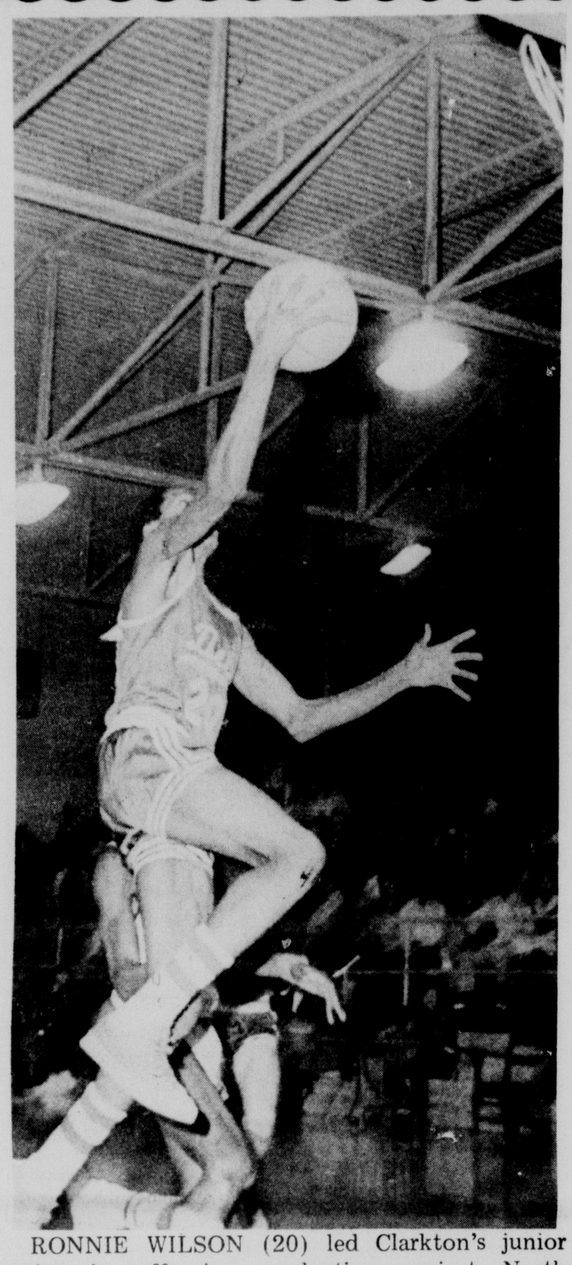

Woodeshick, who was signed as a free agent by the Big Re earlier this fall, appeared in four games for the team after his release from the Philadelphia Eagles.

Guard Dave Bradley was placed on the injured reserve list to make room for Woodeshick, a team spokesman said.

Robert Jackson showed fine shooting as he marked up 30 points to lead Senath- Hornersville's attack on Risco.

Risco was cold in the first quarter and made no points while Senath ran up 14. Risco came back in the second with 12 but the half time score showed quite a big 34-12 gap. Senath continued to hit and went on for another win.

Landis had 13 points for the Risco team, and Smelser backed him up with eight.

Mothershead Hits 31

BELL CITY — Basketball action resumed Thursday night with Kelly of Benton rolling up a smashing victory over Bell City 79-40 and Oran taking the second game from Puxico 65-46 in Bell City B-Team tournament games.

Kelly had two outstanding scorers to lead the team to a big victory. Mothershead hit for 31 points and Felton collected 20.

Bell City was slow in starting, having only two points in the first quarter and seven in the second. The second half was no better as the Bell City team was still cold and Kelly ran away with the game.

Rivers dropped in 18 and Shear 11 to lead Bell City scoring.

Hurst and Taylor led Oran's win over Puxico with 14 points each.

First quarter scoring was low and gave the impression it was going to be a disappointing game but action picked up in the second quarter, with Oran taking charge.

Bowl Scouts Visit Big 8

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It's put up or shut up Saturday for the Oklahoma Sooners and the Iowa State Cyclones in the Big Eight Conference football race.

The two clubs, each with one conference defeat, collide before a sellout crowd of more than 35,000 at Ames, Iowa.

Barring startling developments involving the third-ranked Nebraska Cornhuskers, who lead the league with a 3-0 record, the loser of the SoonerClyclone battle is almost certain to bow out of the running for the Big Eight crown.

The Cornhuskers' nationally televised game at 15th-ranked Colorado must share top billing with the shootout at Ames between the seventh-ranked Sooners and the 14th-rated Cyclones. Colorado is 3-2 in conference competition, Oklahoma 1-1 and Iowa State 2-1.

Missouri, 16th ranked and 1-2, infaces Kansas State, 1-3, and Kansas, 0-3, goes to Oklahoma State, 2-1, for games of lesser importance although Oklahoma State must win or forget its championship ambitions.

Scouts from the Sugar, Gator, Liberty and Sun Bowls will pour into Ames to watch the Sooners and the Cyclones.

Iowa State Coach Johnny Majors, whose team is badly battered after last week's 34-8 victory over Kansas State, has spent the week trying to find ways to slow down Oklahoma's crack wichbone offense "and how to move the ball against their great defense."

"It's always important to score first," Majors notes, "but I'd rather score first in this game than any other one on our schedule. It would be nice to make them play catch up, heck, yes."

"In past years," says Sooner Coach Chuck Fairbanks, "I've always felt that we had a physical advantage over them but that's not the case this season. Their team is strong physically and blessed with some of the most talented athletes in the Big Eight at skilled positions.

"It's a big, big game for us and them, too. We know what we're getting into up there. It won't be any picnic. I think they're the best team in Iowa State history."

The Sooners will play without Tim Welch, their No. 2 fullback who is out for the season with a shoulder injury that required surgery.

Nebraska's defense has held the opposition scoreless in four straight games but may have its hands full with Colorado's Charlie Davis, the league's No. 2 rusher who is healthy again after a shoulder injury.

"Colorado will be the first team that will run right at us," says Cornhusker Coach Bob Devaney. "With Charlie Davis and Bo Matthews, they've got two powerful backs who can hurt you by running at you."

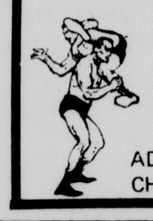

If necessary, the Cornhuskers will fire a barrage of passes at the Buffaloes. Nebraska's Dave Humm tops the conference in passing and has tossed for 1,498 yards.

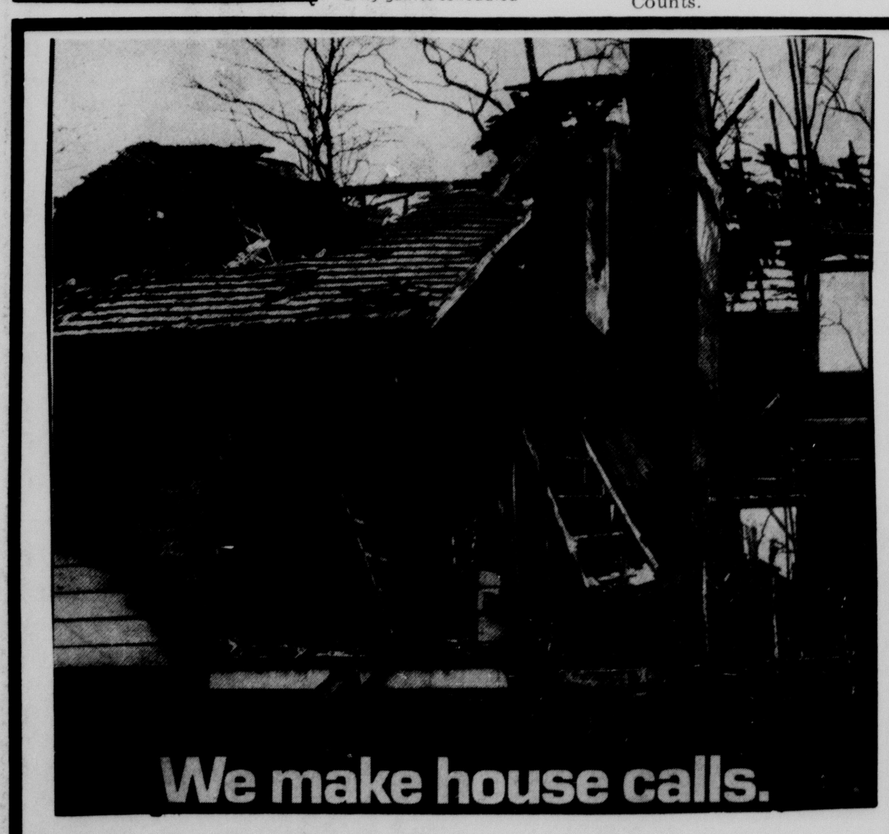

Missouri, despite consecutive victories over Notre Dame and Colorado, is eyeing oft-beaten Kansas State cautiously. Aware of the Wildcats' Dennis Morrison's ability to pass.

SPAINHOWER
DEMOCRAT FOR STATE TREASURER
Honestly, he's the best!

The ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH in endorsing James Spainhower on Oct. 8, 1972, declared:

"Jim Spainhower was a legislator of remarkable independence and his plan for using state deposits to induce banks to attend to community needs should make him most attractive to independent voters".

COLUMBIA (MO.) TRIBUNE
(George Parker's home town newspaper)

"For us the race for state treasurer has raised an interesting question about the philosophy which governs the handling of interest bearing state accounts. . .

"In this race we favor Jim Spainhower simply because he seems to have a more sophisticated grasp of the job he is seeking. On many questions Parker is prone to say he will study the matter and make a good decision after he is elected. Spainhower, on the other hand, seems to have done more of his thinking ahead of time. At the level of treasurer we do not think the party label issue is important enough to be overriding as Parker urges. . .

"We endorse Jim Spainhower, the Democrat, for state treasurer."

Jets Upset Choice

TOM KELLY (left) and Ed Patterson of Sikeston bagged 10-point elks in the mountains near Alamosa, Colo., Saturday. The elks weighed between 900 and 1,000 pounds. Others in the hunting party were Fred Happe and Jess Halford.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Seems kinda funny," said Weeb Ewbank, coach of the New York Jets, "that we're the ones with the healthy quarterback."

New York, a three-point "line" underdog, is a 27-24 upset choice against those high rollers from Washington now that Sonny Jurgensen is gone with a ruptured Achilles tendon.

Joe Namath, as healthy as he is wealthy these days, must have a careful Sunday against Washington's defensive elders or interceptions could ruin his afternoon at Shea Stadium.

Ewbank can sympathize with Redskin Coach George Allen in the loss of Jurgensen. Old Weeb can't recall how many times Namath has been carted lame from the field.

The Jet-Redskin matchup is vital to two National Football League divisions. Washington, 6-1, needs its to stay a jump ahead of Dallas, 5-2. The Jets, 5-2, can't afford to fall farther behind unbeaten Miami, 7-0.

Every NFL offering isn't so handsomely cast. Somewhat of a clunker between the Patriots, 2-5, and Baltimore, 1-6, will keep some of the nation semiawake Monday night.

Thus far, the Friday afternoon predictions have been 28of-38 for a 73.6 percentage. Here's a complete look at what might happen in the eighth week of the NFL season:

Jets 27, Redskins 24: Washington barely escaped in New York last week against the crosstown Giants. This time, Namath won't let them get away with the help of the productive legs of Emerson Boozer and John Riggins.

Raiders 30, Chiefs 24: An American Conference West dandy. Taking a chance that Kansas City's jinx at Arrowhead Stadium will continue as long as the Chiefs are playing inconsistent football.

Steelers 20, Bengals 14: Wide receiver Charley Joiner has pumped up Cincinnati passing game, but this will be a battle of fine defenses.

Falcons 17, Rams 10: Another upset shot. Los Angeles is a three-point choice with the oddsmakers. It's a toughie since these NFC West frontrunners were both bombed last week, the Rams getting it 45-17 from Oakland and the Falcons being smashed 49-14 by San Francisco. LA is cuddling a ½-game division lead with the 49ers now a game behind.

Lions 17, Bears 7: Detroit's defense was puny against Dallas, but should rebound to contain the Bears' good-run, poorpass attack. It's a "new era" matchup between the NFL's quarterback rushing kings, Bobby Douglass of the Bears and Greg Landry of Detroit.

49ers 14, Packers 13: Somehow, the Packers just don't seem to fit in a wild-scoring game. Steve Spurrier waited six years to have a threetouchdown day like the one last Sunday in Atlanta. He should win again as John Brodie's fillin, but not by so much this time.

Dolphins 24, Bilis 17: Miami isn't unbeatable. At least that's what we keep telling ourselves. But, even with O.J. Simpson at his pro peak and Bob Griese grounded with an injury, it stacks up as a ride to 8-0 for Coach Don Shula.

Cowboys 21, Chargers 10: Cowboys seemed to put it together in Monday night's dandy. They're after Washington in the NFC East and San Diego— like most teams trying to get in the way—will be run over whether it's Craig Morton or Roger Staubach at the wheel.

Giants 28, Broncos 17: New York came within a couple of officials' whistles of beating Washington last week. An improving young defense and the continuing passing wizardry of Norm Snead should outdo Denver's Floyd Little-Charley Johnson offense.

Vikings 27, Saints 14: Alan Page and the Purple Gang are back and will chase New Orleans quarterback around Metropolitan Stadium. The guess is they'll catch him more than the Saints harness Fran Tarkenton.

Browns 17, Oilers 10: Mike Phipps showed the finest passing of his career in the victory over Denver and Cleveland— like most anybody—has too much for the struggling Houston bunch.

Cardinals 24, Eagles 20: This one's a real beauty. St. Louis has became one of the NFL's weak brothers during October and Philadephia couldn't stand prosperity, following its upset of Kansas City by losing to New Orleans.

Colts 28, Patriots 14: ABC Television was dealt its share of duds for the Monday nighters this season and this one, with the demise of the Colts, ranks in there with the worst. The Lucy Show should have a great Monday night ranking and few guys will be late for work Tuesday morning after such a good night for sleeping.

BASEBALL

ARLINGTON, Tex. — Dorrel "Whitey" Herzog, director of the New York Mets farm system, signed a two-year contract to manage the Texas Rangers of the American League.

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Indians acquired righthanded pitcher Mike Hedlund from the Kansas City Royals in exchange for utility infielder Kurt Bevacqua.

SANFORD, Maine — Fred Parent, the last survivor of the first modern World Series in 1903, died in a nursing home after a long illness. He would have been 97 on Nov. 25.

Sems In 'Must Win' Situation

CAPE GIRARDEAU-- For the second week in a row, Southeast Missouri State University is faced with a win or be eliminated situation as the Indians lay their MIAA hopes on the line at Maryville Saturday (Nov. 4) in a 2 p.m. game against Northwest Missouri State.

Last week the Tribe faced Lincoln University, which had gone through five games undefeated, and handed the Tigers a 38- 8 setback. This week the Indians, with one conference loss, must knock off the Bearcats if they are to keep their league hopes alive.

Northwest Missouri State has a conference record of 3- 1 and stands 5- 3 overall. The Bearcats offer impressive credentials as they are leading the conference in scoring with 204 points and boast the league's leading passer, rusher, scorer,and punter.

Running back Jim Albin holds three of these individual distinctions, as he is leading in rushing with 937 yards on 163 carries, in punting with an average of 39.9, and scoring with 66 oints.

Curtis Priest is the MIAA's top passer, having completed 85 of 182 passes for 1,100 yards and six touchdowns.

Indian head coach Tom Thrower had plenty of kind words for Saturday's foe and said "Maryville has a real fine team. They have a good pressure defense with enthusiasm and talent. Offensively, they have a strong running attack which we will have to stop and an outstanding passer in Priest."

Thrower knows it is a must for Southeast Missouri to beat the Bearcats and said, "If we beat Maryville, I feel we will have momentum that will make it difficult to keep us out of the conference picture."

The Indians should be in good shape for Saturday's game offensively. They have the third leading rusher in the league in Rich Attig of Murphysboro, Ill., and the league's ninth leading rusher in John Gabrisch of Hazelwood.

Gabrisch, who has gained 326 yards, was selected as the MIAA's offensive player of the week for his efforts against Lincoln. Attig, who has gained 751 yards this season, also contributed to the Tribe's victory over Lincoln with a good rushing total and a 48- yard field goal.

Quarterback Lance Brune of Cape Girardeau has completed 63 of 179 passes for 178 yards and four touchdowns this season.

Southeast Missouri State's overall record is 3- 3- 1. The Indians are 2- 1 in conference action.

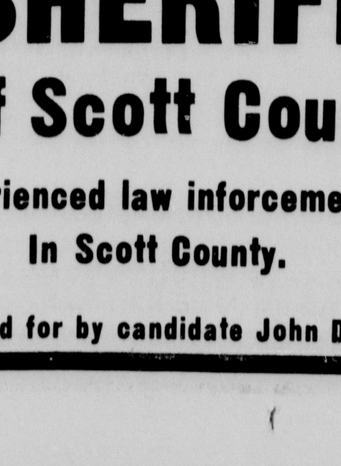

After Saturday, the Tribe will have only two games remaining. They go to the University of Missouri-- Rolla on Nov. 11 and return home Nov. 18 for the season finale against Central Missouri State.

Missouri's leading newspapers endorse Kit Bond for Governor.

THE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH: ". . . the independent voter will favor the election of Mr. Bond. . . Over the years Democratic officials have become entrenched in a mire of patronage; a Republican would be far better qualified to reform the system. For this and other reasons noted we urge the election of Mr. Bond."

THE ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT: "Kit Bond is a man of action. He has the experience and knowledge of State Government. . . He has the integrity, character and mental toughness required for the challenging duties of Governor. . . He is his own man and a tremendously capable one at that. He will make an outstanding Governor."

THE JEFFERSON CITY NEWS-TRIBUNE: "The lack of people's trust in their public servants is the over-riding issue in the campaign. Only a sweeping transition of new faces, ideas, vitality and a totally fresh outlook can restore this confidence. Christopher (Kit) Bond, we think has the tools, the capacity and drive to accomplish this goal."

THE CAPE GIRARDEAU SOUTHEAST MISSOURIAN: "We believe . . . that too many have been in office too long in too many bureaus for there to be effective government under a continuation of the present establishment. . . If change is to come, it must be through a new party unhampered by old loyalties extending back more than three decades. . Consequently, we support Christopher S. Bond."

THE ROLLA DAILY NEWS: ". . . Missouri needs new progressive leadership to lift it out of its lethargy. That is why the Daily News urges the election of Bond as the next Governor of Missouri."

THE KANSAS CITY STAR: "A Bond victory in November would re-establish the 2-party system in the state's highest elective office. It would also provide the opportunity for a new direction for Missouri. If the people of Missouri want a fresh start next January, The Star believes that Christopher Bond is better qualified to follow through."

THE COLUMBIA TRIBUNE: "He has conducted the state auditor's office with honesty and intelligence. . . We think the voters should elect a bright, energetic Governor who will have the maximum mandate for change. That description fits Kit Bond. . ."

THE SPRINGFIELD NEWS AND LEADER: "On the basis of Bond's past record and his announced plans for reforming things generally in the State Capital, we think he should be elected Governor. He has our wholehearted support."

Red Cross Is For Service· Says Jones

The Red Cross is not a charitable or benevolent organization, but it is designed for service, the Rev. W. Pipes Jones, chairman of the Scott County chapter of the American Red Cross told the Rotary Club Monday night at Ramada Inn.

"This service comes at a price," he said.

"Red Cross gives aid to the sick and wounded of the armed forces and Veterans Administration, acts as a medium of communication between the people of the United States and their armed forces and carries out a system of immediate relief for those who suffer in national disaster areas," stated the Rev. Mr. Jones.

"It also promotes a nation wide blood program and gives instruction in first aid, water safety, nursing care and youth work," he continued.

Services to Scott County cost about $8,000 per year to offer a 24-hour per day service, he stated. "About 45 per cent of all money received from contributions in Scott County is given to the Red Cross to help carry out its annual budget, which exceeds $50 million per year," he said.

The Rev. Mr. Jones concluded his speech by saying that there are no paid workers in the Red Cross and gave his tribute to Charles Green, who has given his service for the past 20 years in casework. Jones also made an appeal for support of the work of Red Cross.

A guest of the club was Arnold Jones, a Morley Rotarian.

Hearnes Cited By Teachers

KANSAS CITY— Gov. Warren E. Hearnes was honored by the Missouri State Teachers Assoication Thursday for "exemplary leadership and his signal contribution to education.

The special citation for "Distinquished Service To Education" was presented during the 110th annual Missouri State Teachers Association meeting in Kansas City Municipal auditorium.

The citation referred to him has having been "a lonely champion in the General Assembly" for increased school funds in 1951. His first year as a state representative, and noted that, during his legislative service, he "became the recognized leader for the cause of public education."

Further reference was made of his work for greatly increased funding of state schools during his administration as governor and for his efforts to create in Missouri one of the best teacher retirement plans in the nation.

Both Gov. and Mrs. Hearnes participated in ceremonies honoring Everett Keith, retiring executive secretary of the teachers association.

The governor proclaimed the period of Oct. 29 through Nov. 4 as Everett Keith week in Missouri. Keith has directed the work of the association since 1941, and Gov. Hearnes, a freshman that year at University of Missouri, was one of the first college students hired by Keith as a part- time employe of the organization.

During the governor's career in public office for the past 22 years, the two men have worked together frequently in securing new laws and increased funds for public schools.

To The Voters of New Madrid County

Last week, after publicly stating that I was 100% for Voter Registration in New Madrid County, I called upon all the Democratic candidates seeking an office in the county to honestly and publicly state their position on this issue.

As of this writing the response has been zero. One can only assume that they are insensitive to the need of honest elections or fail to act because of fear of reprisal.

Some facts about Voter Registration obtained from the office of Secretary of State, James C. Kirkpatrick are:

1. The average costs throughout the State of Missouri to install Voter Registration is about 1 dollar per voter and 40 cents per voter thereafter to maintain the Registration Books.

2. Seventy-five % of all Missouri voters live within the 33 counties that have Voter Registration. New Madrid County is among the 25% that does not have Voter Registration and the only county in the bootheel.

3. Missouri is one of 6 states in the United States without state-wide Voter Registration.

New Madrid County cast 8898 votes in the 1968 Governor's race. Any figure of more than $9,000.00 to install Voter Registration in New Madrid County would have to be looked upon with suspicion.

No one can force you to register or to vote. That is a freedom and privilege you must use personally, but if we fail to use them they could be taken away.

Sun Devils Pray A Lot

TEMPE, Ariz. — Prayer is an important factor for football players at Arizona State University here.

The Sun Devils are believed unique among university teams — they have two official chaplains, prayer before and after every game and a special worship on Saturdays when they play.

During games, the Rev. Bert Johnson, director of the Lutheran campus ministry at Arizona State, and Father Gerald Buckley, director of the Catholic Newman Center, mix with players on the sidelines.

The clergymen say that when the going gets rough many team members will stop by to ask for some extra prayer. The Rev. Mr. Johnson goes on every road game, his expenses paid by the National Lutheran Campus Ministry, a joint venture of the American Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Church in America.

At home games, both clergyman lead prayers before and after games. A voluntary worship service, appropriate for both Catholics and Protestants, is held on Saturday afternoons when the team prepares for the game action.

Coach Frank Kush, ranked third in the nation among active coaches in terms of won-lost record, insists on the prayer after games "regardless of win or lose."

Candidates Reflect Old Biblical Conflict

FOR NOVEMBER 5, 1972

Scripture: Daniel 6;
Matthew 22:15-22
Acts 5:17-29

THE CHURCH IN THE SECULAR STATE

Christians daily must make major decisions. Many of these result from conflicts that arise from living under two sovereignties, the church and the state.

Today's memory lesson is one of the most quoted Scriptures: "Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's." Many Christians find this difficult to explain.

Certainly we need Christ's wisdom to understand what is God's and what is the government's. And unfortunately many of us use hypocritical dodges to avoid obeying either God or the state.

In turning to history we find few answers. We do discover many instances when the organized church sought to control the state. One example was the role played by the Pilgrims in our early history.

Today our churches vary in their view as to the best way to separate the church from the state. Some religious leaders favor the distribution of tax money to pay for books for religious-sponsored schools.

Still other religious leaders refuse to accept government loans when the interest rates are below those charged others.

Certainly we have come a long way in our views. The late John F. Kennedy broke the anti-Catholic barrier to the White House.

How far should the church move toward an active role in our political affairs? In the past there have been incidents when the leaders in a totalitarian state sought to control the church. Hitler and Stalin are examples.

In recalling his early years in Nazi Germany Albert Einstein wrote, "I never had any special interest in the Church before, but now I feel a great affection and admiration because the Church alone had the courage and persistence to stand for intellectual truth and moral freedom."

Jesus believed Rome should be paid taxes for the services it provided the people. People should pay tribute to Jesus for life, the fruitful seasons, and the blessedness of a new life in the Kingdom.

When the state becomes unjust, materialistic, militaristic, and irresponsible, the church should step in and act.

As Christians we are obligated to become more informed, dedicated and vocal about our government. When we react as Christians should, our government will be better.

On the other hand, we are not true Christians if we become subservient and complacent. If we become members of the silent majority we fail to act as God wants His followers to act.

Christians are expected to live as citizens of earth and of Heaven, setting godly examples for all to follow. Unfortunately, our young people are upset over the double standards of conduct for children and adults.

And some persons fear we Americans have grown soft and have lost our desire to resist those who would destroy Christianity. Too often we take the easy way.

We must recognize that we live in a pluralistic society. The rights and feelings of all people must be considered.

We must avoid rumors or hearsay stories. We must not insist that everyone believe and act as we do.

The church and the state must cooperate. They can in child-care centers, low-cost housing projects, nursing and retirement homes, hospitals, schools, etc.

The state can guarantee peaceful assembly and assure us police and fire protection. And both can work to make the world worth saving. Neither should "rubber-stamp" the actions of the other.

What is God's and what is Caesar's is impossible to answer with a simple "yes" or "no." It requires thoughtful study.

NEW YORK (AP) — Both are expressly religious men. Both have disciplined Protestant backgrounds. Yet the two major candidates for the U. S. presidency reflect long-time tensions in Christianity.

They display differences that "have polarized Protestants right down the line and also Roman Catholics in recent years," says the Rev. Charles P. Henderson Jr., who has made special studies of the two men's religious attitudes.

As he analyzes it, President Nixon manifests the personally focused religion, linked to revivalism and Americanism, while Sen. George McGovern views religious principles as standing in criticism of the nation and demanding its reform.

McGovern combines the "prophetic and patriotic" while Nixon blends the "pious and patriotic," the Rev. Mr. Henderson said in an interview. "It's the old Biblical conflict between the priestly and prophetic traditions.

"The priest is the one who sanctifies society's institutions and assures its people that everything will be all right despite the problems. The prophet is the one who sticks thorns in the flesh, who speaks with righteous indignation and says the problems must be resolved."

The difference, as commonly expressed in modern friction among church members, is between emphasizing the personal inner solace of faith, or stressing application of gospel standards in action to rectify society's ills.

The Rev. Mr. Henderson, 31, a United Presbyterian clergyman and assistant chaplain at Princeton University, has turned out a new book, "The Nixon Theology," published by Harper and Row. He also has gathered material on McGovern's religious stance, and interviewed him about it.

Between the two, he said, Methodist McGovern is more keenly versed in theology, having once attended seminary, served as a student pastor, and still keeping up with current scholarly journals in the field.

"He tends to be quite unusual in this regard," the Rev. Mr. Henderson said. "He's aware of contemporary church issues. On the other hand, Nixon's emphasis is on simple faith as part of the Amerian culture."

The connection — of faith and nation — is detailed in Henderson's book.

While Nixon is a Quaker, his closest religious associates have been popular clergymen of other traditions such as Southern Baptist evangelist Billy Graham and Dutch Reformed minister Norman Vincent Peale. Officials of mainline Protestant bodies complain he has mostly shunned contacts with them although such contacts were extended regularly by his precedessors.

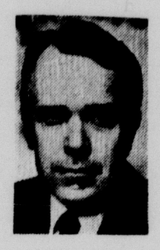

In contrast, McGovern has been active in church organizational affairs, serving as a Methodist delegate to the 1968 World Council of Churches Assembly, and chairing its committee on race. He says he was influenced as a young man by works of theologian Walter Rauschenbusch who renewed emphasis in this century on the gospel's social implications.

Both candidates however, are "self-consciously religious," "The Rev. Mr. Henderson said. "Both see their political careers as kind of a religious vocation, as the highest calling they can pursue in serving humanity."

Both also reflect the Protestant "work ethic," believing that "hard work is good for the economy and good for the soul," he said.

At the same time, he added, Nixon stresses a "moral absolutism" that is part of that tradition, while McGovern stresses ideas of "brotherhood, cooperation, and non-violence" which are another side of the same tradition.

But their classic difference, he said, is in the tension between personal and social dimensions of religion, both of which are valid aspects if kept together but which in isolation become points of conflict.

Churchman's View Of the Campaign

By REV. DAVID POLING

No matter what your party loyalty and preference, you have to agree that this has been a dreary presidential campaign. Gone are the days of debates between candidates.

The major Democratic thrust seems to be a panel of newsmen asking Sen. George McGovern if he really said that the Nixon administration was evil. The Republican response is having Mrs. Nixon open a day-care center in South Nowhere.

For some, the most amazing distraction of this non-campaign was the remark by a Nixon staffer that "the biggest liar in our class at school was the preacher's kid." That gives you an idea of how some individuals weigh the issues of the hour as well as their attitude toward clergymen.

For the larger American community, this political year is simply a disaster. Blame the parties, the candidates, the people, for all have contributed to the heaviness of the hour. Issues seem to have vanished. Discussion and debate is limited to bumper-stickers and 20-second broadcasts. Pollsters keep showing us the percentage points, telling us that numbers are more important than issues, with the undecided vote looking larger every day.

Some churchmen have responded to the question posed by Christianity and Crises, "What at Stake in '72," which offers some hope of intelligence, even in the waning hours of a boring campaign.

Harvey Cox believes that policy differences are no longer fought out in general elections. Like France, Germany, England, the differences between parties is more obscure, with administration replacing politics and negotiation the agency of political change. Cox concludes, "It could well be that Mike Harrington's dream coalition turns out to consist of students, blacks, working people, and minorities who would rather depend on personal advancement, luck and connections to satisfy their needs than on social change."

William Stringfellow sees the primary issue in the erosion of rule of law. "The Nixon regime has extraordinarily accentuated the constitutional crises. Whether one speaks of the war or the Watergate espionage, court appointments or manipulation of grand juries . . . lawless arrests or preventive detention . . . the premise of this administration is that authority is a law unto itself."

Roger Shinn expresses the thought harbored by many when he writes, "I think the stakes in this election are great, and I know what I hope for. I hope for a house-cleaning in Washington that will scrub out the debris from two administrations, Democratic and Republican, and for a reversal of present policies that will restore credibility to government and revive the old-fashioned assumption, forgotten in the last decade, that the White House tells the people the truth."

How Do YOU Feel About
More Taxes?

"I'm absolutely opposed to any form of tax increase." That's how Ed Dowd feels about a tax increase. He also says "While my opponent has made several different tax increase proposals, I believe more efficiency in government will give us all the money we need now. Let's make sure we're doing the best with what we have before we go asking for more." If you feel the same way about tax increases, then Ed Dowd is your man for Missouri's Governor.

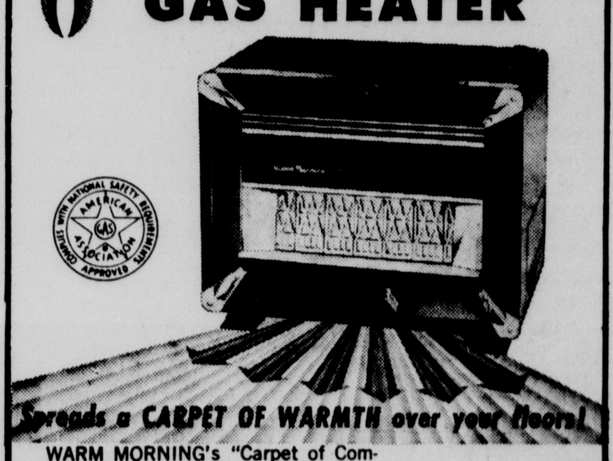

Sure, the people of Missouri want a change. But we all know a change for change's sake isn't the answer. The real answer lies with a mature man of Ed Dowd's unquestioned good character. The son and grandson of policemen . . . a father who understands . . . a man who didn't inherit a thing except an honest respect for the working man, a compassion for those less fortunate and a sincere willingness to help. We can trust Ed Dowd to do the right thing for all the people. Be sure November 7. Vote for Ed Dowd, Democrat for Governor.

Wives Enjoy Sports

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

BETHANY, Conn. (AP) — If you want to keep your husband happy, get involved with his enthusiasm for sports. Wives of well-known sports figures back up their men, not only at their professional sports, but accompanying them on their for-fun sports trips.

Recently athletes' wives watched their husbands,

Tom Mitchell (Baltimore Colts), Len St. Jean (New England Patriots) Jerry Grote (New York Mets) Ralph Kiner, sportscaster (Mets) and former baseball star, and basketball's Jim Ard of the New York Nets as they competed in the Winchester Sports Celebrity Trap and Skeet tournament. The tournament involved shooting at clay targets with shotguns.

The wives had traveled to the grounds by bus with their husbands and other team members, including football players John Elliot and Gus Hollman of the Jets, Spider Lockhart and Willie Williams of the Giants and Julius Adams of the Patriots.

MRS. RALPH KINER and her labrador retriever, Barklee, are on hand to see Kiner compete in a shooting competition.

"Companionship is an important ingredient of marriage," observed jolly Barbara Kiner in explaining why she was there. "Women should look for more opportunities to learn sports their husbands enjoy, and accompany them whenever they are invited.

"To be happy, a husband should have the things that give him relaxation and pleasure, and if he does, your own life with him will be happier," she continued. "A man needs something to help him unwind whether he is a business man, baseball player or whatever. How can there be happiness in a home if a man is constantly put on the defensive about the simple pleasures he enjoys?"

While their husbands performed for prizes, the wives got a little target instruction from a pro.

"It is the first time I ever held a gun in my hand," exclaimed petite Rena St. Jean. "I like shooting at the clay targets, but I couldn't shoot a living thing."

"Maybe you could kill a snake in an emergency," said blonde Ella Mitchell, whose husband Tom learned to hunt small game with his father and grandfather when he was a boy. Tom often travels in the dark of night to the eastern shore of Maryland during the duck and goose season, returning the next day after dark, and barely getting a couple of hours sleep, she says.

"My husband learned to shoot as a boy too, with his father in Seattle," explained soft-spoken Joyce Ard. I might be able to shoot something that was plentiful and needed, but I couldn't kill anything that was becoming extinct."

The women enjoyed the target shooting and agreed that learning to handle guns at an early age might be the simplest way to teach respect for them and remove the mystique surrounding them.

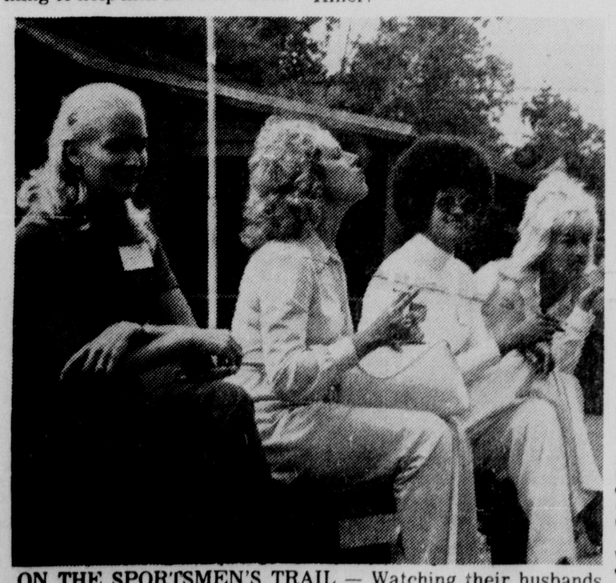

"If they showed children in schools how to use guns, I'm convinced there would be less misuse of them, and that probably applies to other things as well," commented Mrs. St. Jean.

The Grotes plan to teach their son, Jeffrey 6, to handle a shotgun as soon as Jerry feels the time is right, said blonde Sharon Grote. She learned to use a gun at an early age growing up in San Antonio and accompanying her father on squirrel hunts. Jerry grew up on a farm in San Antonio and has been shooting since he was 10 years old. She thinks a school safety course would be an excellent idea for parents who have no one to teach their children about guns.

Their gun instructor, Carl Leopold, pointed out that women are easier to teach than boys, who usually have a lot to unlearn. He has just graduated a class of Girl Scouts from his rifle classes, and he has girls and women from nine to forty in his classes.

"Target shooting has really caught on with women. They bring their children for a 10 weeks basic course and wind up getting in a class themselves."

"More women are trying to become interested in sports their husbands pursue. If a woman doesn't understand the game, it isn't any fun, but she should ask her husband to teach her so she can derive pleasure from it," commented Barbara Kiner.

A look through the Want Ad section of today's newspaper will give you an idea of all the different things you can purchase through these small advertising wonders. And multiply that by all the days in the year, and all the years that Want Ads have been serving America . . . clear back to colonial times. HOW TO BE SEEN BUT NOT HEARD!

Most home owners can UNSELL a house faster than you can say, "let's - get-out -of-Here." Some are over-proud; others are apologetic. Many a near-sale falls through because the owner couldn't resist "helping" the realtor.

When you place your house with us, WE do the work. You need not even be there while we show your property. You can relax, know that your problem is in professional hands. And if the buyer has a hundred questions to ask, they can be handled after the showing in our office, not your living room.

If you're interested in selling, why not call us ... NOW!

Lost Plane Located

THAYER, Mo. (AP) — An airplane and the body of a pilot missing since Sept. 1 on a flight from Searcy, Ark. to Davenport, Iowa, were found Thursday in heavily wooded area some six miles east of here.

Papers on the body identified the body as W. Clay Callaway, 54, Searcy, the highway patrol said.

Civil Air Patrol volunteers, the highway patrol and state conservation officials had searched for several days in central and eastern Missouri for the plane, a small Cessna, after it was reported missing.

GOP Lists Contributors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here, as released by the Committee For the Re-election of the President, is a list of contributors who gave $1,000 or more to the Nixon campaign between Jan. 1, 1971, and March 9, 1972:

ADEPT a dairmen's lobby, Springfield, Mo., $15,000; B. B. Blair, Tulsa, Okla., $1,000; Mr. & Mrs. W. W. Garvey, Wichita, Kan., $1,097; Mrs. Claude C. Harmon, Tulsa, Okla., $1,000; Mrs. John S. Lehman, St. Louis, Mo., $1,000; James S. McDonnell, St. Louis, $5,000.

Democratic Congress Thwarted By Nixion

WASHINGTON-- "The President has not followed the lead of Congress in trying to solve unemployment in a sick economy," Rep. Bill D Burlison of Missouri's 10th congressional district Thursday told Perry County Democrats.

Burlison said unemployment has climbed to and hovered around six per cent since Nixon has been in office.

The representative mentioned legislation passed by Congress which was vetoed by the President, such as the Accelerated Public Works Act of 1971 and the Emergency Employment Act-- each of which he said would have put people to work on much needed projects already authorized and planned.

Burlison also noted that the President was too late in applying wage and price controls which were provided by Congress 18 months before being made effective by the President.

They were also inequitably applied when made effective, resulting in control of wages, but having little impact on prices and profits as the rate of inflation continues at an unacceptable and unabated rate, Burlison said.

McGovern Has Trouble Getting Eagleton Radio Commercial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas Eagleton has been unable to meet a request that he record a 60-second radio spot for the presidential candidacy of George McGovern.

Staff members for both senators deny the incident is a sign of any feuding among them since Eagleton, under urging from McGovern, resigned as the Democratic vice-presidential candidate.

But there are differing versions on why Eagleton hasn't recorded the promotions originally requested by McGovern campaign officials in Eagleton's home state of Missouri.

Eagleton press aide Michael Kelley said Thursday that about two weeks ago a McGovern aide called Eagleton's office to request that Eagleton tape the ad.

Kelley quoted Eagleton's administrative assistant, Douglas Bennett, as replying there were technical objections and questions on the effectiveness of the proposed format.

Bennett, according to Kelley, is still waiting for a member of McGovern's staff to call back with suggestions on improving the broadcast.

Susan Davis, a member of the communications staff of Lawrence F. O'Brien, McGovern campaign coordinator, said she was the person who called Bennett.

She quoted Bennett as saying Eagleton's travel schedule would prevent him from taping the broadcast.

"They weren't very cooperative," she said in a phone interview.

Kelley explained the incident against a backdrop of a request by McGovern that Eagleton do a brief appeal for funds at the tail end of one of McGovern's half-hour paid television broadcasts.

"We told them we'd be delighted to do it," Kelley said.

Kelley said he called McGovern campaign director Frank Mankiewicz to ask when the TV spots would be recorded and Mankiewicz promised he'd call back in a few days.

The call has never come, Kelley said.

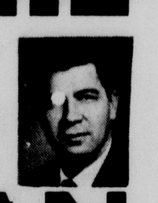

Miss Davis said she has arranged with no difficulty radio promotions by Sens. Edmund S. Muskie, Hubert H. Humphrey, Major Leader Mike Mansfield, John Pastore, Edward M. Kennedy, Birch Bayh and House Speaker Cal Albert.

Further complicating relations between the McGovern and Eagleton staffs are a handwritten notation on a newspaper article sent by Bennett to Miss Davis' boss John Stewart, described by Kelley as an old friend of Bennett's.

The article from a Detroit newspaper quoted McGovern sources as saying there were unpublished complications to Eagleton's health beyond the nervous exhaustion which led to McGovern's request that he step aside.

On the article Bennett inscribed the comment: "This isn't making things any better," Miss Davis said.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Scintillating Ride

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Mr. Wimple boarded a train that was so packed with passengers that he grumbled more than the train rumbled. Unable to find a seat, his annoyance diminished, however, when a shapely blonde was pressed right up against him by the crowd. If she had been any closer, in fact, she would have been behind him.

And as the train swayed back and forth as it moved along, causing Mr. Wimple and the bosomy blonde to brush against each other, they exchanged a number of embarrassed smiles. What Mr. Wimple didn't realize was that the scintillating blonde was as lighthanded as she was lightheaded. It wasn't until after he left the train that he realized that she had swiped his wallet.

Blaming the railroad company for his loss, Mr. Wimple sued the railroad company to get back his stolen money.

"It was careless in permitting the train to get so crowded," he complained in court. "It was the crowded condition that enabled my wallet to be hoisted."

"If anyone was careless" retorted the railroad company, "it was Mr. Wimple and not us. Instead of watching the blonde, he should have been watching his wallet. Obviously, he was careless in concentrating on the wrong thing."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the railroad company responsible for Mr. Wimple's loss?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the railroad company could not be held liable for Mr. Wimple's lost wallet unless he could show that his pocket was picked as a direct result of the overcrowding. In this case, concluded the judge, the theft could have been more the result of the sway of the blonde rather than the sway of the crowded train.

The Prayer from the Upper Room

Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life. (John 14:6)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, we feel the responsibility which rests upon us in knowing that what we do rather than what we say counts most. Help us to be influences for good today as we work and as we pray. "Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory forever. Amen.

RESPECTABLE LIAR?

Dear Editor

The white stallion looks a little darker and rusty spots are appearing in the shining armor of our modern day Sir Galahad who is out to rescue all Missourians from The Fire Breathing Dragon, but in view of Kit Bond's chain of lies where is the Dragon and who needs the rescuing?

It is no longer a question of did he lie, the frightening part is do we care anymore? has Christopher Bond brought respectability to the shameful act of lieing? Have we further lowered our qualifications for character? Is the time near when we will no longer have any method to measure a decent man against a corrupt man? Does not "Thou shalt not bear false witness" have such great importance as to be included in God's ten commandments? Isn't it silly to support a liar in an important position and continue to tell our young people lieing doesn't pay? When a person lies to get something they cannot have by telling the truth they also steal do they not? Bond's lies were for personal gain so who audits the auditor?

Apparently lieing is Mr. Bond's bag so how does he judge those whose bag is smoking pot, free sex, obscene movies, hard dope, and stealing? Is Bond not a contributor to our declining morals?

Mr. Bond is a natural for this New Political Strategy that has successfully swept across our nation where if you disagree or even question their motives you are branded as radicals, revolutionaries, or unpatriotic, ungrateful, biased, a liar, Communist sympathizer or any undesirable label to keep your mouth shut and I'll probably catch more hell for saying he lied than he did for lieing.

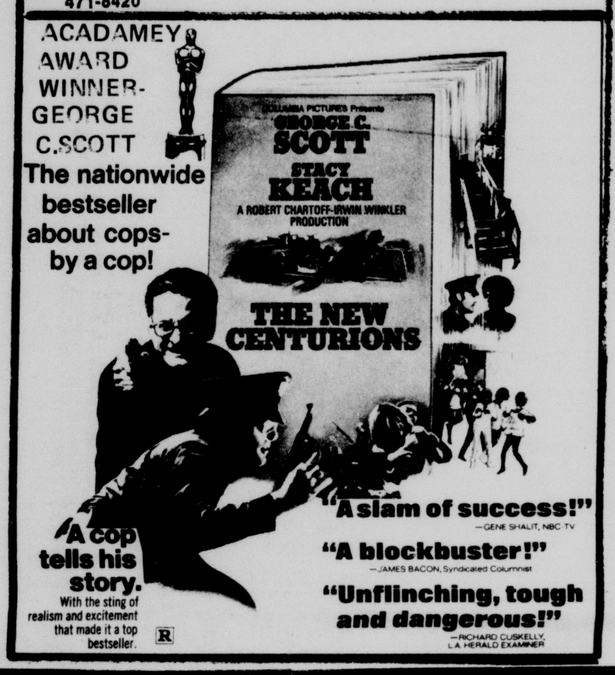

This wealthy heir filed non residency forms and avoided paying sales taxes on his automobiles and paid no income taxes in Missouri for at least three years. The other citizens paid their taxes (including the poor) and now Bond wants to govern these people and use their taxes to increase his wealth via the Governors mansion. These people should be Bond's governor he has not earned the right to be theirs.

Us Bootheel farmers wouldn't trust a liar with the keys to our pickup truck on Saturday nite but are we less particular with the keys to the governors mansion?

Woman Drowns In High Water

BONNE TERRE, Mo. (AP) — The Highway Patrol said a woman was drowned Wednesday evening when her car was swept off a low-water bridge by a flash flood. Her body was recovered from the car in Cabiney Court Creek 1½ miles from the bridge.

The victim was Carl Ann Bertke, 30, of Route 2, Bonne Terre. The Patrol said she was driving on Missouri Route 47 three miles northwest of Bonne Terre when the freak accident occurred.

Troopers said she was driving behind her brother who had crossed the bridge but was unsuccessful in his efforts to warn her of the danger.

Entertainers Were A Hoax

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Two Hollywood entertainers will not appear in Southern Missouri in behalf of the McGovern-Shriver ticket as supposedly arranged by a mysterious blonde, says Dr. Charles Ash.

Ash, of Springfield, 7th District co-ordinator of the campaign, said Thursday preparations for Marlo Thomas and Peter Lawford were cancelled in Cape Girardeau, School of the Ozarks, Lebanon, Springfield and Joplin when the appearances could not be confirmed and the woman disappeared.

Ash said the woman, identified as Mrs. Carolyn DuPont, also claimed she had arranged for the Temptations, a singing group, to appear in Kansas City and St. Louis.

He said she moved to Springfield in May and worked one day a week in McGovern headquarters. After the Democratic National Convention Mrs. DuPont worked full time in the Greene County Democratic headquarters.

Ash said she left for Hollywood Sunday.

RAIN has slowed harvest in Southeast Missouri, where nearly four inches has accumulated in low-lying areas of the Bootheel. This cotton field on the Billy Aycock farm near Parma was ready for the picker when the rain began two weeks ago. Another week of dry weather is needed, however, before thoughts of entering the field can be considered.

Rain Keeps Harvest At Halt

Rain has kept the Bootheel harvest at a virtual standstill for the past week.

Only three days were suitable for fieldwork last week, according to the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service in Columbia.

The cotton crop is 43 per cent picked -- sharply behind the 65 per cent at this time last year. Although farmers have picked some cotton between rains in fields firm enough to support pickers, most gins have slowly eliminated their backlog of seed cotton.

The state's corn crop is 47 per cent harvested sharply behind the 71 per cent harvested last year. Less than half of the corn in the northern third of the state has been harvested, while half or more is harvested in other areas.

Soybean harvest progressed to 52 per cent of completion. This compares to 69 per cent completion at this time a year ago. Harvest has surpassed the halfway point in the northern and central thirds of the state. However, the Bootheel region lags behind with less than one-third of the beans harvested.

Fifth-six per cent of the grain sorghum has been harvested. A year ago 77 per cent of the crop was out of the field. Harvest is more than two-thirds completed in the west central, southwest and Bootheel regions, while half or less has been harvested over the rest of the state.

Fall plowing continues with 26 per cent of the plowing completed in the state, compared to 42 per cent at this time last year. Fall seedings are 73 per cent completed -- the same percentage as a year ago. Pastures are in mostly good condition and soil moisture is adequate throughout most of the state.
